DELEGATES' CASES UNDER ADVISEMENT

Judge Gantt Postpones Decision on Question of Their Release.

LEGALLY HELD, SAYS FOLK

JUDGE KRUM DECLARES SERVICE OF WARRANTS ILLEGAL.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 20.—Judge Ganntt of the Supreme Court in chambers this morning heard the application for the discharge of Otto Schumacher and others of St. Louis on habeas corpus.

Judge Chester Krum and Thomas J Rowe appeared for the petitioners, whil Circuit Attorney Folk and his assistant A. C. Maroney, appeared for the state. M. Folk filed the return for the jailer of St Louis city, in which he claimed the prisoners are held legally in that they are held by two bench warrants and two capiases.

Judge Krum then filed a reply in the nature of a demurrer to the return of the circuit attorney.

Mr. Folk contended that if the service of the bench warrants were illegal, then the capias would legally hold the prisoners. Judge Krum argued that the service of the bench warrants was illegal and would not hold the prisoners lawfully because there was no formally prepared indictment to show on what charge the prisoners were held. He also claimed that the capiases were nugatory because they were issued after Judge Gantt issued the order for the jailer to show on what ground he held the prisoners.

At the conclusion of the hearing, at 12:15, Judge Gantt announced that he would consider the matter until Monday morning, at which time he would announce his decision.

SOMETHING BIG FOR MONDAY

Mr. Folk and the Grandjury May Spring a Large Sensation.

With Circuit Attorney Folk in Jefferson City Saturday attending the habeas corpus proceedings looking to the release of prisoners Helms, Schumacher, Schnettler and Tamblyn, in the city jail on charges of bribary and perjury, the grandjury is not in session, and will not be in session until next Monday.

On that day it is anticipated that a session of unusual importance will be held. Circuit Attorney Folk has stated as much. At the close of Friday's short session Mr. Folk smilingly announced that the short session was one of the most important yet held, and that testimony of vital importance to the "boodle" campaign had been laid before the grandjury.

He said that he was unable at that time to announce the nature of the testimony, but he said that in all probability Monday would reveal its importance.

Because of the near dates for the trials of Snyder and Butler, the grandjury will scarcely hold any meetings next week, save the one for Monday, when it is thought that the indictments will be returned and a long recess taken.

Sheriff Dickmann and his deputies and Chief Desmond and his sleuths receive and investigate fresh clews daily as to the whereabouts of Kelly and the other fugitives, but no clew has yet developed anything that has led to anything definite.

LOOKING FOR HIS WIFE.

William V. Skopie Asks Aid of Police in Finding Her.

William V. Skopie of Hannibal, Mo., was a caller at police headquarters Saturday morning and requested Chief of Detectives Desmond's aid in locating his wife, Della Skopie.

Skopie told the chief that his wife left their home at 520½ Broadway, in Hannibal, on Aug. 25 last, and went to visit relatives in Alton, Ill. On Sept. 1 she left Alton for St. Louis. Since that date Skopie says he has not heard from her. She is described as being 26 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighing about 124 pounds. She is of light complexion, light hair and has blue eyes. She was dressed neatly.

Spanish Ex-Officer Seeks Business Here

SENOR FRANCISCO ZARDAIN.

CUBAN TO STUDY ASPHALTING

Francisco Zordain, Owner of Asphalt Mines, Here to Inquire Into the Industry.

Francisco Zardain, a leading business man of Havana, Cuba, is at the Planters'. He is the owner of valuable asphalt mines at Mariel, 22 miles from Havana and has other interests, including sugar plantations on the island.

Senor Zardain is a native of Spain and does not speak English. He was a captain in the Spanish army in Havana. With an interpreter's assistance he is endeavoring to study the asphalt industry of the United States with a view of increasing his exportations to this country.

He sailed from Havana for New Orleans a month and a half ago and will visit Chicago and New York before returning. He arrived in St. Louis last Sunday and will remain until Wednesday.

Senor Zardain was instrumental in securing the construction of a railroad from his mines to the seaport of Mariel, a distance of 10 miles. This road, he says, has the only railroad tunnel in Cuba.

FIGHT AND A FIT SCARED OFFICER

Incident in Connection With Burglary at a Shop.

The barred windows of the Phenix tailoring establishment at 1513 North Jefferson avenue were pried open Friday night, and $100 worth of dress goods and clothing were stolen. Two wagon stakes, which were used in place of crowbars, were found in the back yard.

Officer Stead was collecting memoranda of the burglary Saturday morning when James Morris, 19 years old, who lives at 1512 Elliot avenue, entered the shop and asked for the stakes, it is alleged. The policeman ordered him out of the place, and a witness says Morris called the officer a vile name, struck him in the face and then went out on the sidewalk.

The officer made for the boy, who stood his ground, and there was a battle royal for about 15 minutes. Both the combatants reached mother earth, and it was a question which would get the decision, when the policeman suddenly secured a good grip and landed on top of Morris in a hallway near by. They had rolled and scuffled for twenty feet, but the officer held the boy, who lay quite still for a moment.

Then the officer released his hold and arose to his feet, very white in the face. Morris was having an epileptic fit, and it was some time before he was in a condition to permit of his being taken to the police station, where a charge of resisting an officer was placed against him.

Morris was fined $10 by Judge Tracy in the Second district police court Saturday. He declares that the officer assaulted him without provocation and tried to force him to leave the sidewalk, where he had gone after being ordered out of the store.

The police were very mysterious concerning the burglary and would give no information regarding either of these occurrences.

White Baby Held for Board Bill by Colored Woman

Photographed by the Post-Dispatch

WHITE BABY HELD FOR YEAR'S BOARD BY BLACK MAMMY

Mysterious Child in West End Is in Kind Hands.

HIS NAME IS "IGNATIUS"

HUMANE SOCIETY AGENT DECLINED TO TAKE HIM.

Found That Colored Woman Was Taking Such Good Care of The Infant That He Was Better Off Where He Was.

"Ignatius" is the full name and title of a year-old white baby that has been held for its board bill by a negro family in the western edge of St. Louis since it was 5 days old.

The baby is in the care and keeping of Mrs. Dony Edwards at 6137 Bartmer avenue and is fat and hearty. He is $125 in arrears, his board having been fixed at $2.50 a week, but his life is insured to cover the amount and both he and Mrs. Edwards are happy.

Here is the story of Baby Ignatius, born July 29, 1901, told to the Post-Dispatch today by its "mammy:"

CHAPTER I.

The stork came to a house in the West End and flapped his big wings at the window panes for admittance.

The windows were opened, the stork flew in and upon the white coverlet he laid a tiny mite.

It was not what may be called a lusty infant, either. It gave a feeble cry, and the elderly woman in attendance remarked to the doctor whom the stork had summoned on his way:

"Poor little thing! It won't live the day through."

"Hardly," said the doctor.

But as the hours passed the lung-power of the infant increased, and its cries grew lustier.

There was a sick woman in the house, a sister of the baby's mother.

The cries of the child irritated the invalid.

"Take it away!" she cried. "Whose baby is that, anyhow? Where did it come from?"

"What shall we do?" asked the doctor, who also attended the sick woman. "It is not well to have a crying child in the house where one is so ill."

The mother of the baby lay silent, thinking of a happy home out in a country town not far from St. Louis, where she had passed her girlhood.

"Let me take it home," faintly suggested the mother.

A message was sent to the folks at home, but there came back an indignant reply.

Then the elderly woman came to the front.

"I know what," she said. "There is a good, motherly colored woman out west of the Suburban tracks. She has five children of her own. Maybe arrangements could be made for her to take this little boy."

"Doesn't matter," said the doctor. "Child will be dead, anyway, in two or three days; can't live; too weak to get a firm hold on life. If the colored aunty wants it let her have it—anything to get it away from my patient."

CHAPTER II.

"Give it paregoric," said the doctor to Mrs. Edwards as the colored woman took the baby, almost stifled by the heat.

"No matter much what she gives it," said the doctor after the baby's departure. "The boy won't live a week."

"I've raised children before," said Mrs. Edwards when she returned to the row of flats behind the long porch built in the old-fashioned southern style, with low fence partitions. "I know what to give this poor little honey, and if anybody can make it live I think I can."

But for many long weeks the woman almost despaired of the baby's life. It was sickly and ailing all the time. Nursed on the bottle, it would not thrive. It grew so weak that its cries scarcely could be heard by the playful pickaninnies on the porch next door.

Two weeks after the baby went to live with Mrs. Edwards there was a caller at the row of flats. A young woman, wearing a thick veil not in keeping with the weather and her fashionable summer attire, alighted from a car at th

HONEYMOON IS POSTPONED

Groom Had to Appear in Court to Testify About a Fight on His Car.

Conductor Scott Brouster of the St. Louis, St. Charles and Western trolley line has been compelled to postpone his honeymoon trip in order to appear in court at Clayton as a witness.

He has just been married to Miss Artie Cox of Wellston. When about to depart on a wedding trip he discovered that he was expected to appear at Clayton to explain a fight which took place on his car July 25, in which George C. Fox, George H. Fox and Robert B. McConnell were engaged.

The conductor caused the arrest of the three men named, charging assault to kill. They caused his arrest on a like charge.

All were bound over, the preliminary hearing of the three passengers being held Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Brouster hope to start on their wedding journey Monday.

CLOUDY, UNSETTLED WEATHER

St. Louis Is Not the Only Spongy Spot on the Map, Says Dr. Hyatt.

Dr. Hyatt forecasts cloudy and unsettled weather for Saturday night and Sunday, with showers, and says it may be warmer.

The promise of warmer weather came Saturday, but the clear skies were confined to a part of the afternoon.

It was 6 degrees warmer at 7 o'clock than the same hour Friday, when 62 degrees was the registry.

There was rain during the night in nearly all sections of the United States, which shows that St. Louis is not the only spongy spot on the map.

Heavy rains fell in Florida, which is watery anyhow, and in Oklahoma and Ohio.

There is a "low" over the Rocky Mountains, which are high, and a "high" over the northeast coast, which is low.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

For St. Louis and vicinity—Cloudy and unsettled, with possible showers Saturday night or Sunday; warmer Saturday night.

Missouri—Showers tonight or Sunday; warmer Saturday night; cooler in northwest portion Sunday; southerly winds, becoming variable.

Illinois and Indiana—Showers Sunday and possibly late Saturday night; warmer Sunday; east to southeast winds.

avenue crossing and hesitated. She entered the drug store at the corner and made inquiries. Then she walked west a few doors, past a green board fence that cuts off the business premises from the row of flats.

Turning in at the gate first beyond this high fence, the young woman walked to the porch and inquired for Mrs. Edwards.

"Lawsy me," replied a colored woman neighbor, "she's inside 'tending to that chile. Never see her no mo' sence she got that white chile."

The young woman tried to suppress a sob, but the neighbor of Mrs. Edwards was observant.

Infant Gave a Feeble Cry.

"If I knowed that baby's mother," she went on, "I'd just laik to give her a piece o' my mind. Lettin' that po' li'l thing be brung up on a milk bottle away from its home! But Mis' Edwards mighty good to it."

The young woman entered the house and sank down beside a little cradle. A colored girl was fanning the white baby. Two or three black children stood about.

The white baby gave a feeble cry, such as it gave 19 days before, when the stork was admitted to the house on the West End avenue.

The young woman gasped.

"Here's the baby's milk," said Mrs. Edwards, entering the room. Observing the young woman, she paused.

The visitor had thrown back her veil when the front door was closed. She stood revealed, a beautiful, girlish thing, with big brown eyes and luxuriant hair of a deeper brown. Her face was pale and her mouth drawn as if in sorrow. She spoke brokenly:

"Are you come to it?"

"Just as good as if he was one of my own children," replied Mrs. Edwards.

"Thank you. I—I came from—from the baby's mother to make arrangements for you to keep it awhile yet. I—she says she will pay you whatever you ask for its board and the care of it."

Mrs. Edwards named a figure which was mutually satisfactory.

"The money will be sent you," said the young woman, "every month, I think."

Replacing her veil to conceal her features, she walked out of the house.

CHAPTER III.

The stork's gift began to mend. On hot days he was taken out for a ride in the shade of trees, in his little baby buggy, used several seasons already as the state coach of the wee black Edwardses.

At night and throughout most of the day he slept in the cradle where the little Edwardses had been rocked to sleep.

When the child was half a year old he became lusty enough for anybody. He could cry loud enough to be heard beyond the farther end of the row, and his appetite for bottled milk was amazing.

And he was no paregoric baby.

He grew so healthy and fat that a life insurance agent was willing to write a policy on him.

Not a cent of the promised board money had been paid. The veiled young woman had disappeared, so far as the Edwards household was concerned, and the baby still called for milk.

"What's its name?" asked the life insurance man.

"Just baby," said Mrs. Edwards.

"But it must have some name of its own before we can write the insurance."

Mrs. Edwards put on her thinking cap. Once she had read a poster announcing a lecture by Ignatius Donnelly on the Bacon-Shakspeare cipher. The given name of the lecturer impressed her.

"I'll name the baby Ignatius," she said to the agent.

And so Ignatius, having already a local habitation, found a name.

CHAPTER IV.

Not long ago Baby Ignatius became an object of interest to the Golden Chain Humane Society.

For months he had been the chief object of interest in his neighborhood, hundreds of persons wondering how it came that a white baby was growing up in a negro family.

"There must be a story to that baby," remarked a white citizen living beyond the row. "I'll just have the officials investigate the mystery."

Whereupon the Humane Society was informed that a beautiful, plump, brown-eyed white infant was being raised in a colored family.

An officer of the society visited the household. Baby Ignatius cooed at him, showing four white teeth.

"Goo-goo!" cried Baby Ignatius.

To the agent Mrs. Edwards told the story of the infant. She showed him the dainty white clothing which she and her daughter have made for Ignatius. The neighbors told him of the motherly care she had bestowed upon the little waif, how her work had been interrupted by her ministrations in its behalf, how she had brought it out of the valley of death by constant nursing.

The child's own chubby face, smiling in the cradle, gave more testimony.

"I was told to take the child away and put it in a home," said the agent.

"I'd be mighty sorry to lose it now," replied Ignatius' "mammy." "I can take better care of it than any home can. Besides, the child's people owe me a year's board for Ignatius, and I reckon if your society takes the boy you'll have to pay me about $100 or more."

"I reckon Ignatius is pretty well off where he is," remarked the Humane man.

"I reckon he is," replied Mrs. Edwards.

"Goo-goo!" assented Ignatius.

THE MIN-STER-REL MEN

INTERLOCUTOR FONTANA (Moodily): Gentlemen, owing to the absence of the manager the performance is a little late starting this evening. The weather is too oppressive for comfort, and some of our star performers are feeling groggy. Some of them are sick in bed and unable to be here, and the audience is small. But as this will be our last performance in St. Louis for some time to come, we must endeavor to jolly the public as heretofore. So please be as gay as you can. Mr. Albright, I will start the festivities by asking you a little question: Why are the indicted members of the House of Delegates who escaped arrest like those who went to jail?

MR. ALBRIGHT: Why are the indicted members of the House of Delegates who escaped arrest like those who went to jail? Why, they had a close shave.

FONTANA: Very good, Eddie, very good! Mr. Cronin, I am sorry that you and Mr. Sweeney are not going "on the road" with us. Before we part, please elucidate the following conundrum for the gentlemen: Why, is our absent star, Mr. Kelly, like the baritone in "The Bohemian Girl?"

MR. CRONIN: Gee, Johnnie, but you 're gettin' high-toned—ringin' in comic opry on a min-ster-rel crowd! Why is Mr. Kelly like the baritone in "The Bohemian Girl?" Well, I s'pose it 's because his favorite song is "The Heart Bowed Down."

FONTANA: Exactly, Mr. Cronin. You are certainly one swell guesser. Mr. Sweeney can you tell me who is the author of the expression, "The 'pen' is mightier than the sword?"

MR. SWEENEY: I don't know for certain, Johnnie. Must 'a' been Joe Folk.

FONTANA: Somebody must 'a' told you. But that 'll be about all o' that. Mr. Faulkner will now entertain you with a little "Folk" song, written by himself, music by "Kid" Sheridan, entitled, "Young Am I and Sore Afraid."

ANCESTRY OF THE PRESIDENT

Official Statement From Secretary Says It Is Holland and Scotch-Irish and Not Hebrew.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 20.—Discussion over the lineage of President Roosevelt has brought out an official statement from him that he is of Holland and Scotch-Irish origin and not of Hebrew ancestry.

The incident, which culminated in the statement, grew out of a discussion between Herman Lelene, secretary to Baron Oppenheim of the German legation at Cairo, who has visited here, and the Rev. F. B. Cuase of the German Lutheran mission. Mr. Lelene asserted that the President must have been of Hebrew ancestry and that originally the name was Rosenfeln. To determine the matter the Rev. Mr. Cuase wrote to Secretary Cortelyou and the reply came as follows:

"Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 18, 1902.

"Dear Sir: Your letter of the 13th inst. has been received, and in reply I would say that the statement to which you refer is incorrect. The President's ancestry is of Holland and Scotch-Irish origin. Yours truly, GEORGE B. CORTELYOU,

"Secretary to the President."

HANGED HIMSELF IN A BATHROOM

WITH SLENDER CORD

Abe Cowen, Whose Cousin Was Killed in Empire Hotel Fire, Ends Life.

DESPONDENCY THE CAUSE

WOMAN LOOKED THROUGH TRANSOM AND SAW HIM.

Mrs. Annie Robinson Notified Her Father and a Physician, Who Cut the Man Down, but Aid Came Too Late.

Abe Cowen, a glass-worker, hanged himself in the bathroom at 2644 Olive street Saturday morning. He slipped a stout but slender cord about his neck, tied it to the reservoir and then stepped off the bathtub and strangled to death.

Miss Campbell, whose mother conducts the rooming house, had gone to the room several times trying to learn what was the matter with Cowen, who she knew was there, and after she had waited 45 minutes without receiving a response to her knocks and calls, she became frightened and ran to Morris Speelman's store at 2628 Olive street, for somebody to come and see what was the matter.

Mrs. Annie Robinson, Speelman's daughter, accompanied her back, and the latter stood on a chair and looked over the transom. She saw Cowen hanging there, already black in the face. She hastened for her father and Dr. J. J. Hoffman, who cut the man down and endeavored to resuscitate him, but without avail. He was dead when found.

This was Cowen's second attempt at suicide within a week. Last Monday he placed a gas jet in his mouth and then turned it on full power. He inhaled as much of it as he could and then, acting like a madman he rushed from his room to the Speelman tailoring shop, shouting "Acid, acid!"

A physician was called and the man was siphoned, but no poison could be found in his stomach. Cowen confessed that he had tried to asphyxiate himself and promised Mrs. Speelman to never attempt to take his life again.

Cowen was 24 years old, and until two weeks ago was employed by a large concern. He was one of the guests of the Empire Hotel who lost their all in the fire there last February, and his cousin, Morris Yall, was killed. Mr. and Mrs. Speelman took him in and gave him a home until he could find another. He took a room at 2644 Olive street, and his friends furnished him with his meals, carrying them to his room three times a day.

He had been very despondent since the Empire Hotel fire and had never recovered from the shock of his cousin's death in that conflagration. His father is George M. Cohn, who lives at Indian Orchard, Wayne County, Pa. The young man would not permit his name to be written as is his father's, but insisted upon being addressed as "Cowen."

Cowen has been confined to his bed for about two weeks. He suffered from no particular disease, it is said, but just seemed to be worn out. A physician attended him, but could locate no ailment which medical attention could heal.

The police were notified shortly after the body was discovered and it was removed to the morgue.

NEGRO WAS SHOT AND KILLED

Sam Clark Drew a Knife and James Vaughn Fired on Him.

Sam Clark, a negro driver, was shot and instantly killed Saturday afternoon by James Vaughn on Moore street, near the adjoining homes of the two men.

Clark and his wife had a quarrel in their house at 219 Moore street, and the woman ran across the street to No. 214 for protection. Her husband followed her, and when Vaughn stood in his way he drew a knife.

Vaughn ran into the street and drew his revolver on Clark, who had followed him. The third shot which he fired pierced Clark's heart.

Vaughn went to the Four Courts and gave himself up. Clark's body was taken to the morgue.

"MRS. JOHNSON'S MIND UNSOUND"

—KATE W. BEALL, M. D.

Woman Doctor Treated Woman Who Committed Suicide.

TAKES CLOTHO CLUB TO TASK

SCORES MEMBERS FOR THE RESOLUTIONS THEY PASSED.

These Resolutions Stated That Mrs. Johnson Had No Mental Trouble and That She Planned to End Her Life.

DR. KATE M. BEAL'S REPLY TO CLOTHO CLUB.

I notice in several of the daily papers an account of a memorial service for Mrs. Addie M. Johnson held by the St. Louis Equal Suffrage Club and members of the Clotho Club and other organizations.

In reply to the resolutions unanimously passed by the club, in which they presume to pass upon the mental condition of the deceased and assert that Mrs. Johnson had carefully meditated upon her course, and ended her life in accordance with the precepts and tenets of the Clotho Club and with approval of representative members, I would suggest that the ladies rename their organization the "Suicide Club," and thus deter from entering their ranks persons of nervous temperament who are likely to be influenced by the meretricious principles enunciated at their meetings by a neurotic, morbid, enervated and blase membership.

As Mrs. Johnson's physician, I can unqualifiedly state that for some time previous to her death she had been under treatment by me for mental trouble at her own request. In my opinion the influence of the Clotho Club and their learned (?) discussions as to suicide contributed no little to her untimely end.

As Mrs. Johnson's physician and neighbor I became intimately acquainted with her affairs and am competent to state positively that she had no reason for her course, and that it was simply the result of her mental condition.

Therefore the implied reflection upon her friends and family by the proceedings at this meeting is unkind, uncalled for and unfounded. KATE W. BEALL, M. D.

Dr. Kate M. Beall, physician to the late Mrs. Addie M. Johnson of 5711 Bartmer avenue, who committed suicide is indignant at the resolutions passed and published by the Clotho Club, wherein is repudiated the idea that Mrs. Johnson's suicide was due to mental aberration, and she has written the above letter to the public.

The Clotho Club's expression regarding the matter, setting forth that Mrs. Johnson had favored suicide under certain conditions, in discussions at the club, has caused Dr. Beall to take up the cudgels in behalf of her dead friend, in a letter to the public.

It is said that some members of the Clotho Club heartily disapprove the action of the majority in passing resolutions to the effect that Mrs. Johnson killed herself while perfectly sane.

These members hold it a crime to kill one's self except when insanity renders the person irresponsible, and they cling to the belief that Mrs. Johnson was mentally unbalanced, which Dr. Beall, as her physician, positively asserts.

NEW LIFE TO WEAK MEN.

Old Men Made Young Again—Weak Men Find Old-Time Strength and Power of Youth.

TRIAL PACKAGE MAILED FREE

To the men who have tried every known remedy to revive their waning power or lost manhood, and have given up in despair, the following message comes as a most blessed promise. This new discovery restores all men who suffer with any form of sexual weakness, resulting from youthful folly, premature loss of strength and memory, weak back, varicocele or nervousness. It gives the warmth, strength and development just where it is needed, and cures at once all the ills and troubles that come of years of ignorance of the functions, for it has been an absolute success in all cases. A simple request to the State Medical Institute, 1815 Elektron building, Fort Wayne, Ind., will bring you one of these free trial packages, in a plain wrapper, without any marks to identify its contents or where it comes from. The institute has had so many inquiries from men who are unable to leave home or their business to be treated, that it has perfected this splendid home treatment and sends it in free trial packages to all parts of the world to show just how easy and simple it is to be cured at home of any sexual weakness when this marvelous new sexual discovery is employed. The institute makes no restrictions and any man who writes will receive by mail a free trial of this wonderful remedy, absolutely free. Those who write need have no fear of any publicity, as the State Medical Institute is an old established institution, incorporated by the state for 30 years.

ANTHAX KILLED HENRY DRYER

Rare Disease Among Men; Fatal to Animals.

WAS INOCULATED FROM HIDES

SHEEP SKINS HE HANDLED HELD THE DEADLY BACILLI.

Superintendent Neitert Says It Is the First Case of the Kind Under His Observation at City Hospital —Comes From Decaying Vegetation.

Henry Dryer, an employe of a tanning establishment in South St. Louis, and Frederick Cummings are dead as the result of contracting antnrax, one of the most deadly diseases which is mostly found among animals.

It appears that Cummings had eaten half-cooked pork which was impregnated with the anthrax germ.

Dryer's affliction resulted from handling the hides of sheep, which are thought to have been impregnated with the deadly bacilli.

Butchers, tanners and others who handle sheep hides are careful of an abrasion which may give lodgment to one of these anthrax germs.

Hospital Superintendent Neitert says this is the first case of anthrax infection that has come under his observation at the City Hospital.

Dryer was almost constantly engaged in handling the hides of sheep and other animals and was subject to inoculation if he touched a hide containing the anthrax germ.

Like the germ of tetanus, or lockjaw, the anthrax germ is thought to originate in the ground chiefly where there is decayed vegetation.

It is generally communicated to man by contact, although one may be infected through food or by inhalation.

Dr. Neitert will attempt to isolate an anthrax germ from a drop of the patient's blood.

American pork was excluded from the German market on the ground that it contained anthrax germs, but this was regarded as more of a pretext than the real reasons prompting the German government's action.

BOARD EXONERATES GOV. YATES

But It Opposes Political Contributions by State Employes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 20.—The State Board of Public Charities has exonerated Gov. Yates of the charge of enforcing contributions for political purposes against the employes of the Kankakee Asylum. It says contributions have been made, but always voluntarily. It thinks this poor policy, saying:

"Your board has no desire to interfere in any way with the privilege which every citizen has of contributing money for the purpose of promoting the interests of the political party to which he belongs. It is of the opinion, however, that the superintendent should not permit the collection of funds for political purposes from employes, where such action may be construed by them as a requirement to give, contrary to their own free inclinations and desires.

QUEEN OF BELGIUM DEAD.

Marie Henriette Expired After a Three Years' Illness.

SPA, Belgium, Sept. 20.—Marie Henriette, Queen of Belgium, expired last night from syncope, which attacked her while she was eating.

Death so soon followed the attack that neither the King nor the court doctor was present.

Queen Marie Henriette was a daughter of the late Archduke Joseph of Austria. She was born Aug. 23, 1836, and was married Aug. 22, 1853, to Prince Leopold of Belgium, son of King Leopold I, who ascended the throne at the death of his father as Leopold II, Dec. 10, 1865.

The Queen was noted for her piety and charity, and in recognition of her devotion to the church the Pope sent her, about nine years ago, a notable token of his high esteem in the form of the Golden Rose of Virtue.

She was also a noted and brilliant horsewoman.

The Queen had been ill for about three years of a malady of the heart, and in recent months her condition had been so serious that little hope of her recovery was entertained.

BURGLAR CAUGHT

IN DESPERATE STRUGGLE

AFTER LONG VIGIL

W. A. Edmunds and C. M Russell as Amateur Sleuths.

CAPTURED THIEF RED HANDED

WAS LOUIS TRITE, FORMER EMPLOYE OF ROBERTS-JOHNSON-RAND CO.

The Clerk-Detectives Recognized Him at Once and Had Him Up in Carr Street Station—Had Keys Which Opened Doors

Louis Trite of 216 Chouteau avenue is occupying a cell at the Carr Street Police Station, charged with burglary, as the result of clever and strenuous detective work on the part of W. A. Edmunds and C. M. Russell, clerks at the Roberts, Johnson, Rand Shoe Co., 1001-1003 Washington avenue.

The capture was made on the second floor of the shoe company's building at 4:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

Trite surrendered after a desperate struggle, during which two shots were fired by young Mr. Russell.

During the past 10 days about 50 pairs of shoes have been stolen at different times from Roberts, Johnson, Rand Shoe Co., and the theory at once advanced by the firm was that some one familiar with the premises had committed the depredations.

Mr. Roberts called Edmunds and Russell into his office Friday evening and told them of his suspicions, at the same time asking them if they would volunteer to remain on watch during the night.

The young men promptly assented.

At dusk they took up their vigil in a secluded place on the second floor where several boxes of shoes were stored, but which were left open for immediate examination.

Patiently they waited through the long and lonely hours.

Sleep they would not for each moment they felt their victim would come.

It was shortly after 4 o'clock when they heard a creaking noise, as if some one were coming up the stairs.

They listened with breathless suspense.

Suddenly they beheld a figure on the landing and an instant later saw a man walk boldly across the partially lighted room and delve into a shoe box.

"Now is our time," said Russell.

"All right," whispered Edmunds, "let's jump him."

With no fear of danger the young clerks rushed towards Trite. The latter gave a startled cry and then make a break for the door.

Edmunds grabbed the intruder by the arm and Russell put his arms around his waist.

"You're our prisoner," they said in chorus. With an oath the burglar sprang forward.

A fierce struggle followed and all three fell to the floor. For five minutes they rolled over and over.

IT WAS "OLD TRITE."

Trite struggled with all the fury of a madman to free himself. Finally, Russell reached for his revolver and fired two shots. This was too much for Trite.

"It's all off," he said, "I surrender."

It was not until he was escorted downstairs that the young men established the identity of their prisoner.

"Why, if it isn't old Trite," exclaimed Russell, as the prisoner stepped into the bright rays of an electric light.

Trite had been employed by the firm up to two months ago. He confessed that he went there Saturday morning to get a pair of shoes, but did not contemplate an extensive burglary.

He denied too that he had stolen the other shoes which were missed or that he had frequented the building before.

The police were immediately notified and Trite was conveyed to the Carr Street Station.

There a bunch of keys were found on his person, one of which opened the door of the shoe company's building.

Mr. Roberts is very proud of the work of his employes.

Trite is a powerfully built man, about 35 years old, while his captors are slim, but make up in nerve and courage all they lack in physical proportions.

Will Send Her Daughter's Wardrobe

MRS. JOHN PATTON.

Mrs. Sarah Bass at Last Persuaded That Her Daughter Is Now Mrs. John Patton.

Mrs. Sarah Bass of 2639 Papin street, whose daughter, Lulu, eloped last Monday with John Patton of Fredricktown, Mo., has at last yielded to the solitation of her daughter, now Mrs. Patton, to send her clothing to her new home.

While Mrs. Bass was ill in bed her daughter departed Sunday, meeting her fiance, to whom she was married Monday. Mrs. Patton wrote a letter from Fredericktown announcing her marriage and asking her mother to send her clothing.

Mrs. Bass refused to believe that her daughter was married.

"I must see the marriage certificate," she said.

Saturday morning another letter arrived, which convinced Mrs. Bass, and she had the bride's wearing apparel packed and shipped.

MAYOR WELLS ASKS FOR $15,000

Wants Ample Funds for Prosecution of Boodlers.

WILL DELEGATES PASS BILL?

MAYOR IS SANGUINE OF THE COUNCIL'S ACTION.

Says He Will Raise Funds by "Confidential Solicitation If Assembly Does Not Give Circuit Attorney Folk the Needed Money.

As announced in Thursday's Post-Dispatch, Mayor Wells Thursday evening sent a special message to the Municipal Assembly asking that an appropriation of $15,000 be made to assist Circuit Attorney Folk in his prosecution of the boodle cases.

The mayor urged the assembly to expedite the passage of such an appropriation bill, calling attention to the fact that the funds allotted to the circuit attorney's department are totally inadequate to meet its present unusual requirements.

Mayor Wells inclosed with his message the bill that he desired passed.

It is thought that the bill will promptly pass the Council. The mayor is not so sanguine that it will pass the House of Delegates.

Mayor Wells has stated to the Post-Dispatch, however, that he proposes to see that Mr. Folk has all the money he needs and that if the assembly fails to pass the bill he will secure the funds by "confidential solicitation" among public spirited citizens.

NO PERSONAL FIGHT PLANNED.

Democratic Campaign Leader Telegraphs Denial to Henderson.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Chairman James M. Griggs of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, who is at the Hoffman House, said today that there was nothing in the story from Washington that the Democratic campaign managers had planned to make a personal fight against Speaker David B. Henderson and that this had much to do with Henderson's withdrawal from the congressional race. Mr. Griggs wired a denial to Mr. Henderson. Speaking of Mr. Henderson's withdrawal, he said:

"It indicates the growth of the sentiment that tariff reform is the only way to curb the trusts."

No Bar in Monticello Hotel.

The Monticello Hotel Co., through W. C. Sipple, Jr., secretary and treasurer, writes that the Post-Dispatch was misinformed in stating that the bill passed by the Municipal Assembly to permit the establishment of a bar in a hotel near Forest Park was instigated by the Monticello.

Mr. Sipple says the Monticello is a family hotel and its management is opposed to the location of saloons in the neighborhood and would not consider any proposition to have a bar in the house.

The house has 200 rooms, which is 50 less than the number mentioned in the bill as necessary in an apartment house for the acquisition of a bar. The Monticello Hotel people wish to add their protest to the signing of the bill.

BOY OF 10 STEALS

IN KANSAS CITY

CHILD OF 3 YEARS

Locked Little Fellow in Vacant House.

FOUND IN DARK CLOSET

NO FOOD OR WATER FOR THIRTY HOURS.

The Boy Who Committed the Crime Has Been Found and Will Be Placed in Custody and Punished for His Cruelty.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 20.—"Teddy" Brainerd, 3 years old, a lost boy who disappeared from his home at 3409 Main street yesterday morning, was found late last night locked in a dark closet on the second floor of the vacant house at 3413 Baltimore avenue, where he had been taken and imprisoned by another boy.

The lad was naked and for nearly 30 hours had been without food and water. Everything points to the conclusion that "Teddy," as the boy was known in the neighborhood, was kidnapped at noon, Thursday, presumably, by Perry Brock, 10 years old, who lives at 3317 Oak street, taken to the vacant house on Baltimore avenue and locked in the dark closet, although the motive of the boy kidnapper is as yet only a matter of conjecture.

The Brock boy disappeared at the same time "Teddy" did, and he, too, has been found. Last night he was discovered east of Washington Park, apparently journeying away from town. Though only 10 years old the Brock boy had been expelled from the Hyde Park ward school.

"Teddy" is the child of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E Brainerd, and is the "baby" of the family. Shortly before noon Thursday, Mrs. Brainerd noticed a strange boy around the house, and soon after her "baby" could not be found.

Not a trace could be found of the missing boy until 4 o'clock yesterday when Dr. and Mrs. L. F. Flamm of 109 East Twelfth street, while looking for a residence, went into the vacant house at 3317 Oak street. Soon they heard a sound, something like the wailing of a child. The cry astonished them. Again the cry came. "Mamma, Mamma," they heard.

They started up the stairs and stopped to listen.

"Mister, I wants my mamma.' They heard the voice plainly this time, the lisping voice of a child, as it came from a closet that led off from one of the bedrooms. Then Mrs. Flamm saw the tiny finger of a child sticking through the crack under the door. Hastily they turned the key in the lock and threw wide open the door. There stood a naked child. He was fair-haired, with tearful, blue eyes. He was taken home.

The police have been asked to arrest the Brock boy, and he will be punished.

The Farmer's Success Depends Upon Freedom from Disease and Suffering.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

IS THE MEDICINE THAT HAS MADE THOUSANDS OF COUNTRY TOILERS WELL AND STRONG.

There are thousands of farmers in our land who are rich in broad acres and gold, yet lack that true wealth known as good health.

It is a melancholy fact that men and women in the country districts, breathing the purest air and drinking from God's bubbling fountains and limpid springs, are liable to the same diseases and ailments that come thick and fast to city people. We find rheumatism, neuralgia, debility, dyspepsia, kidney and liver troubles, and blood diseases almost as common in the farmer's family as they are in city homes.

Paine's Celery Compound, heaven's best blessing to the farming community, has done more for the banishment of dread disease and the building up of health than all other combined medicines. Mr. John Zuspan, a prominent and well known farmer of Middleport, O., writes specially for the benefit of sufferers in the rural districts. He says:

"Last November I was so badly crippled up with rheumatism, which came on in June, that I could hardly walk without the aid of crutches or a heavy stick. About the tenth of November I commenced taking Paine's Celery Compound, and after using four bottles I was completely cured, and was able to attend to my usual work as well as when I was 40. I am now 66, and can walk and run as well as a man of 30."

Winfield Dudley, a St. Louis newspaper man, was severely bitten by a dog while on a fishing trip at Alton yesterday.

Dudley stopped at a farmhouse near the river bank to get a drink of water. While he was at the well the dog attacked him.

He fought the dog as he backed toward the river. He came to a fence, and as he turned to jump over it, the dog buried his teeth in his flesh. Bruno annexed a goodly portion of Dudley's trousers.

Dudley fought the dog until he came to the river bank, when he sprang into a skiff, which Fred Leonard of Upper Alton had ready.

EDWARD C. ROBERTS HAS DISAPPEARED

BRIDE PROSTRATED OVER HIS MYSTERIOUS ABSENCE.

NO REASON FOR IT IS KNOWN

Relatives Hold the Theory That He Has Met With an Accident or Foul Play.

Absolute mystery surrounds the disappearance of Edward C. Roberts, who has not been seen by relatives or friends since he left his home 3943 Blair avenue, at 7:30 o'clock last Thursday morning.

The missing man had been married only eight days and his bride is prostrated.

He is employed at the Burlington Elevator Co., East Grand avenue and the Levee, where he had a well-paying position.

Roberts left the house Thursday morning, saying he was going to the downtown offices of the company in the Laclede building, and would also buy some furniture which was needed.

When he failed to return by evening his wife notified Roberts' brother, Albert J. Roberts, and a search was immediately instituted.

Roberts' relatives can assign no reason whatever for him going away, and they lean to the theory that possibly he met with foul play or became ill and was sent unidentified to some hospital.

SECRETARY SHAW'S SAFETY.

Chicago Man With an Imaginary Grievance Was Arrested.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Fearing that he might attack Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, police arrested H. J. McGrain, who is said to be laboring under the delusion that the treasury department owes him thousands of dollars. Chief Wilkie of the secret service instructed Capt. Porter to arrest the man and hold him until after the visit of the secretary and President Roosevelt. McGrain will be examined by the city physician, and, if found to be insane, will be confined at the detention hospital.

In a letter which McGrain sent to Secretary Shaw he referred to a fund "left for my support by Jonathan Clarke in 1812" and inclosed a draft for $10,000, signed "James Augustus of the World."

are a source of mortification and unhappiness to those afflicted. Yet how unnecessary!

Munyon's Witch-Hazel Soap

applied night and morning with a light lather and allowed to dry in, will cleanse the skin, soften it, beautify it, and eradicate impurities so thoroughly that in a short time the improvement will be apparent to all. Sold everywhere; 15c per cake.

I want every woman desirous of a beautiful complexion to try my Witch-Hazel Soap. It preserves the creamiest skin and makes hard skin soft and fresh. I want every person afflicted with skin disfigurements, pimples, blackheads, eruptions, or with hard, scaly scalps to try it. It will cure any skin disorder, and it is a shampoo without an equal. I want everyone looking for a medicinal soap and yet a toilet luxury to try it. Nothing else will suit them afterwards.—Munyon.

If you have blood troubles that show in eruptions and pimples, or other disfigurements, use my Blood Cure—it will drive out all impurities. If your liver is out of order, and you have moth patches, sallow skin or blotchy complexion, I want you to try my Liver Cure. It will give you good health and good looks. If you have indigestion and dyspepsia, preventing proper assimilation of food and causing consequent paleness and that "worn-out" look, take my Dyspepsia Cure. You can then eat all you like, of what you like, when you like—and your skin will glow with youthful freshness.—Munyon.

Street railway regulation is a public necessity.

Dave Henderson is certainly not the David for the Trust Goliath.

Prepare St. Louis for the World's Fair; the mayor's message is to the point.

The immediate duty of St. Louis is to punish the boodlers and push public improvements.

The capital of the Steel Trust is said to be more than one-half water. This is doubtless supposed to be enough to float its securities.

THE ODOR OF MONOPOLY.

The testimony in the Meat Trust inquiry is decidedly unsavory, but no less important on that account.

Joseph Steinkamp testified that he worked for one of the trust packers almost continuously from 1892 to 1900.

During that period he sold bad hams. Asked if he didn't know it was a violation of the law, he replied that he was ordered to sell them and was only doing his duty. The hams were sold cheaper than good meat.

The same witness testified that there was an agreement among the packers which insured stable prices. In conclusion, he told that he had handled painted sausage. "It seems that sausages are painted, first, "to make them look nice, and second, to keep them in a good state of preservation."

Unsavory? Yes, it is the odor of monopoly.

It remains to be seen whether Oct. 13 is an unlucky date for Col. Ed Butler or for the prosecution.

WE SHALL SWELL WITH PRIDE.

The cheering announcement is made that the Board of Public Improvements proposes the construction and reconstruction of 100 miles of street in 1903.

This will make it New St. Louis indeed.

Substantial pavements will be put down on all the principal streets and many of the cross and connecting streets will be improved.

If the program is carried out, St. Louisans will swell with pride. Let us hope none of us will burst. But people who have for years tramped and waded wearily through mud and stumbled helplessly over all manner of insane obstructions may be pardoned if they become too self-respecting when they are given decent municipal conveniences in exchange for their taxes.

The successful prosecution of this highly laudable program, however, will deepnd upon the co-operation of the Assembly. This is now uncertain owing to the difficulty of getting a quorum in the House of Delegates. So many of the members are away for their health, and so many more are expected to enter the public service in Jefferson City that body may be seriously crippled. However, vacancies can be filled by special election. The delay need not be prolonged.

Just think of it—100 miles of new street—decent streets—a special wonder!

Mr. Henderson will serve out his term as speaker and do what he can to protect the trusts from tariff reduction.

A NEW YORK STATESMAN.

Bill Devery, one time chief of police of New York, was elected Democratic leader of the Ninth district the other day and is now the most conspicuous figure in the politics of that city.

Bill's platform is simple, containing only three planks or articles of faith—Beer, boodle and good fellowship.

No trace of intelligence is to be found in Devery's program and public career. That would ruin everything.

Bill gave a barbecue during his campaign, whereat oxen were roasted whole and devoured in large chunks by his constits and beer flowed like untempered Mississippi river water. Bill himself, full of genial humor, moved around among his guests, kissed the babies, complimented the girls in his own peculiar fashion and patronized the men who looked up to him with awe.

The fellow is a representative New York statesman. We have a number of the same sort in St. Louis, but just now they are not in a flourishing condition owing to a misunderstanding with the circuit attorney which has thrown the Devery brand of statesmanship into the shadow of a certain public building in Jefferson City. But New York still believes in Devery statesmanship. At least, the Ninth district does. And Devery himself confidently expects still higher honors.

Is it any wonder that municipal government in America is in a bad way? If the people elect these curious creatures to public office is it strange that the city is sold out for trifling bribes to "prominent citizens" who happen to need such cattle "in their business?"

The vast majority of St. Louis and New York voters are intelligent and honest. Why do they elect the Deverys, Lehmanns, Kratzes, Gutkes and the like to offices of public trust?

He who answers this question is wiser than the ancients and has solved the problem of municipal government.

Secretary Moody of our navy made a part of his fame by fighting boodle aldermen. He is doubtless much interested in what has been going on in St. Louis lately.

TERRY IN TEARS.

"Talk not of woe until ye see
The tears of bearded men."

When Terry McGovern was informed that the courts of Kentucky would not permit him to meet Young Corbett in the prize ring and "knock his block off" for a purse and a percentage of the gate receipts, he laid him down on his narrow couch and wept.

And oh, such galling tears! They were tears surpassed in bitterness only by the tears shed by the great John L. Sullivan these ten years gone, when James J. Corbett "knocked his block off" at New Orleans for a purse and a percentage of the gate receipts; just as those tears were exceeded in bitterness by the salt, salt globules shed by Robert Fitzsimmons at San Francisco a few weeks ago, when he was accused of "faking" after his "block" had been knocked off by James J. Jeffries for a purse and a percentage of the gate receipts. And others there be who have wept either before or after the battle.

What psychological quirk is it that makes our pugilists so lachrymose? It matters not whose "block" is forcibly removed, the waterworks are turned on almost before the gore is removed from the gloves. A report of a big prize fight without an account of a hero bathed in tears would be as absurd as a report of a battle without a list of the dead, wounded and missing. What is there about a prize fight that so melts the emotions of the muscular mighty ones and causes them to dissolve in tears?

Tennyson must have been thinking of something like this when he wrote: "Tears, idle tears, I know not what they mean!"

The mayor's recommendation that $15,000 be appropriated for use of Circuit Attorney Folk in the prosecution of the boodlers should receive prompt, favorable action by the Municipal Assembly. The state provides no special fund for the use of the circuit attorney, but the work of prosecuting the boodle cases is extraordinary and costly. The work is for the benefit of St. Louis and the city should provide all the money needed for the purpose. The starting of a fund by the Post-Dispatch with a contribution of $500 has resulted in providing sufficient money for Mr. Folk's immediate needs. It prompted also the raising of a guarantee fund so that Mr. Folk can proceed with his work, assured that the money will not be lacking. But the special appropriation should be made. It is eminently proper that the city aid the circuit attorney by providing the funds necessary for the uncovering of all the facts of municipal corruption and the punishing of all the guilty.

HOW TO TREAT THE FUGITIVE BOODELRS.

The course to be pursued towards Boodler Kelly, who is evading the officers of the law, is clear and simple; find him and bring him to justice; let him be convicted and given the extreme penalty of the law.

Boodler Kelly pleads guilty by evading arrest and going into hiding. He forfeits all claim to mercy by defying the law and the courts and keeping himself concealed. Being indicted for the crime of boodling, the statute of limitations does not run in his case. If he does not surrender and serve the state before Oct. 27 by exposing the men who conspired to plunder St. Louis in the lighting deal, he will shield the other guilty men, but he himself will be liable to punishment at any time. That he will be punished is certain.

The same thing may be said of Boodlers Hartman, Dicker, Sheridan and Lehman. All of them fix their own guilt and forfeit consideration by hiding from the law officers.

The only way that a boodler can earn consideration of mercy and seek mitigation of punishment is by doing a service for the state. The only service he can render is to make a clean breast of his own wrongdoing and supply evidence of others' crimes.

To take an opposite course and obstruct the course of justice is to forfeit all claims for mercy and assure for himself the extreme penalty of the violated laws.

All the hiding boodlers will eventually be caught and punished. The widespread news of the extent and enormity of the offenses of the boodle gang in St. Louis will make it difficult for any St. Louis boodler to find an asylum in any country, with or without an extradition treaty. They will be regarded as obnoxious by any government and extraordinary efforts will be made by the United States government to secure their return.

The boodlers will be caught and punished, but they should be caught promptly and sent to trial. It is the duty of the police and the sheriff to locate and arrest them at once. Kelly escaped through the easy favor of a sheriff's deputy. That he and the other boodlers are not under arrest is a reflection on the police department and the sheriff's office.

The people of St. Louis will not brook either trickery or negligence in dealing with the boodle cases. The reputation and welfare of St. Louis are at stake in this matter. The laws must be vindicated and St. Louis redeemed from the affliction and the reproach of boodleism.

The Rev. Dr. Johnson of Boston declares that American snobbishness has found its most complete development in New York and Newport, and he charges that the rich families of the East have imbibed European ideas which are anything but an improvement upon our own. However, there is enough sturdy Americanism in the country, and especially in the West and South, to counteract demoralizing European influences. We shall make Europe American before America can be made European.

Chairman Akins is relying upon "the stream of immigration that has been pouring into Missouri" to aid his party in the coming elections. It is to be hoped that all the immigrants who settle in St. Louis will help to insure clean city government, regardless of partisan appeals.

It is astonishing that any eastern manufacturers should have got it into their heads that the World's Fair of 1904 would be no more than the Buffalo or Omaha expositions. Is it possible that they have to be shown by Missourians?

New York bankers say that the enormous collections of customs duties in September have greatly increased the money stringency there. So it seems that the high tariff is making trouble for others than consumers.

If "a layer of coke, then a layer of soft coal, and then a layer of coke on top" will give as good heat in a furnace as anthracite, and doesn't make smoke, we shall certainly not miss Mr. Morgan's hard coal so much.

Mexico is certainly alive when a syndicate of Mexicans comes to Missouri to buy thousands of acres of fruit land. The big red apple is in demand all over the world and the Mexicans are likely to get their money back.

The Alton glassblower who has come into a fortune of $100,000 will go to Australia and raise sheep. Is it possible that Mr. Dingley has not made the United States the best and most profitable of sheep countries?

Drivers of vehicles may not love the motormen, but they have no reason to delay passengers, whose business may be urgent. Until automobile lines shall have been established the passenger an have no other conveyance than the street car.

The supposition that the city's population has increased 30,000 since this time last year is not extravagant. With all the other increases the increase of population comes naturally.

The credit of the trusts ought to be good so long as Congress remains disposed to give them all the time they want.

Why should a car ride cost five cents when a great newspaper, with its enormous expenses, is sold for one cent?

Kentucky will be on hand on state allotment day, notwithstanding her inadequate legislature.

POST-DISPATCH SNAP SHOTS.

"Peary in polar costume" without the pole is a little disappointing.

Why send expeditions in search of the North Pole? Nobody is there whom we can do.

The Henderson declaration may burgeon into a presidential boom. Look out a little, Ted.

The efforts of good women to obtain worthless husbands will continue long after the divorce courts have been abolished.

So much has been said of sausage made from concession meat that the old-fashioned canine variety may regain its popularity.

The author of the old rhyme which begins with "Corn cobs twist your hair" had no conception of the future of the Missouri corn cob.

Filtration may attract visitors to St. Louis and induce them to stay, but how will old residents feel with all the mud gone from their beverage?

With 1,250,000 bushels of apples coming from a single Missouri farm, all New England will want to move out here to enjoy our unlimited "apple sass."

The largest apple orchard in the world is in Missouri, and it covers 2300 acres. Soon, however, it will cease to be the largest. Another Missouri apple orchard will occupy 5000 acres.

In spite of the fact that the young people found that ice cream at the Pissa Chautauqua could be had only at certain hours, the season proved the most prosperous in its history.

It has been decided, and the decision has been emphasized by a fine, that a tamale vender must not cry his goods in too loud a voice at night. Tamale eaters doubtless have a quick ear for the name of their favorite food, and the tamale sales are not likely to be much reduced by this decision. There is so much noise all day that a modification of noise at night is a great relief.

All Right to Kill a Burglar.

From the Washington Post.

A Massachusetts judge has decided that it is all right to kill a burglar who has entered your house. Occasionally the law gives the ordinary citizen a show for his life.

Just A Minute

WITH THE POST-DISPATCH POET AND PHILOSOPHER.

"OUT OF ORDER."

How often, when you hurry
To reach the telephone,
To tell wee wifie not to worry
If late at home alone,
The thing will spurt and sputter
At every word you utter,
And grunt and moan and mutter
And mock your lightest tone!

While you with rage are raving
And on distraction's border,
The fiendish thing your soul enslaving
Till Satan seams your warder,
A voice comes gently cooing,
As soft as lovers wooing,
That says, to your undoing,
"That 'phone is out of order."

When we poor, sinful mortals
Assemble at the gate
Of Paradise, to seek the portals
Where endless joys await,
To count our gains and losses,
To drop our heavy crosses,
And, freed from earthly losses,
To learn, at last, our fate,—

If we are barred from glory
By heaven's grim recorder,
(St. John, you know, relates the story,)
And Nick becomes our warder,
In regions most infernal,
Doomed to despair eternal,
We'll blame that blamed diurnal
Old message, "Out of order!"

Writing Poetry.

It is easy to write poetry. Just as easy as making a pie or an undershirt. All you have to do is to follow a formula.

If you wish to write something humorous, select some good model, John G. Saxe or James Whitcomb Riley, for example, and sit down at your desk. It is no trouble to write. All you have to do it to wait for the funny ideas to come to you.

If it is something reminiscent you seek, the process is just as simple as the other. You take seven "Ohs!" eleven "Ahs!" three references to "happy days," two "How oftens!" two "long agos," four references to "days gone by," one "blush," two "kisses," one simile pertaining to "dew," one reference to "diamonds," one "sparkle," one phrase about "your eyes," one about "wildwood" or "shady lane," eight "dears," six "sweets," one "nevermore," one "ramble," and one "sweetheart"—by no means forget the sweetheart, for no reminiscent poem is complete without this—and arrange them carefully on small slips of paper. Paste them neatly on a large sheet according to the model you are following, and then fill in names and phrases to suit; the older and more hackneyed the better.

If you follow these directions carefully you can stand on your head and write a poem on any old subject you please, entirely to your own satisfaction.

"Write for circular."

A Thought for the Day.

BY A BASEBALL FAN.

If Boston hurries in the race,
We'll be in luck with second place.

A Russian physiologist, Prof. Pawzow, claims to have discovered a psychological cure for dyspepsia. We hope he will show us without Pawzow it works.

A married woman, 20 years of age, who disappeared in Chicago, is referred to in the dispatches as a "child-wife." Aw, back up!

If Kelly were to "come in," he would make the thirteenth boodler under arrest. Maybe that accounts for it.

Reversed.

Though from the bowl men do not shrink,
Nor even shun the can,
We notice man sets up the drink,
Then drink upsets the man.

A local clairvoyant advertises that she "unites the separated together." Did she ever see a surgeon amputate a man's leg off?

A new novel tells of "Lois Mallet's Dangerous Gift." What was Miss Mallet's particular gift? Wielding the hammer?

A New York woman was crippled in a bargain rush. "Advertising pays."

A dog may have a right to howl and still not have a license.

Are you a Skinker Roadster?

CLEVER LITTLE STORIES.

The late Mr Hickie was a noted second-hand bookseller of Dublin. His bookshop was the favorite haunt of bishops, clergymen of all creeds, professors and scholars generally in search of rare volumes. A story is told of an encounter Mr. Hickie had with a Catholic priest only a few days before he retired from his beloved bookshop to die. A young priest called on him and taking up a book inquired the price. "Half a crown, father," said Hickie. "But," said the priest, "I can get it for a shilling and 6 pence from Mr. Blank." "Of course," said Hickie, "but, you see, 'tis a Protestant book, and I think you shouldn't buy a Protestant book, so I put half a crown on it that you might lave it behind."

A youth was engaged as junior clerk by a firm of lawyers and by way of filling in his time and testing his worth on his first day he was told to write a letter demanding payment of a debt from a client who was long in arrears. To the great surprise of his employers a check for the amount arrived the next day. They sent for the young clerk and asked him to produce a copy of the letter which had had such an astonishing result. The letter ran as follows: "Dear Sir: If you do not at once remit payment of the amount which you owe us we will take steps that will amaze you."

Balzac and Dumas once met at a party. Not a word was exchanged till Balzac on departing said as he passed Dumas: "When I can do nothing else I shall take to writing plays." "Begin at once, then," was the prompt reply.

HEALTH AND TOBACCO.

Dr. Coughlin holds that tobacco should be refused to convalescents from disease until health is fully restored, and that in any case of functional heart disease the tobacco history should be investigated. In certain individuals no amount of tobacco seems to do harm. He holds that when it gives a person an agreeable feeling of comfort after its use it is not contra-indicated, but it should not be used by boys or women on account of their nervous susceptibility. The order of harmfulness of the various methods of the use of tobacco is given by him as follows: Snuff-taking, chewing, cigar smoking, pipe smoking and cigarette smoking, the latter being the least harmful in itself, but more liable to do harm from increase in the habit. In conclusion he holds that the use of tobacco is sometimes harmless, often harmful and generally expensive.—Detroit Tribune.

THE NEWEST BOOKS

"By the Stage Door."

St. Louisans should have a tender regard for "By the Stage Door," an attractive volume on heavy paper just issued by the Grafton Press of New York, 70 Fifth avenue; $1.50. The authors are Miss Ada Patterson, formerly a newspaper writer of this city, now of New York, where she has attained considerable prominence as a writer of short stories, and Victory Bateman, an actress, who was a distinct favorite in St. Louis four years ago, in the days of the Imperial Stock Company, and who had an exceptionally large personal following.

These stories are not only highly interesting, brightened as they are with humor, colored as they are with pathos and depicting as they do some of the soul tragedies enacted behind the scenes, away from the eyes of the world, but Annie Adams, who has written the introduction, assures us that all of them are true. "The Story of a Friendship," "The Passing of the Leading Lady" and "He Married an Actress" are the titles of some of the most striking stories.

In "The Autobiography of an Actress," Miss Bateman has incorporated some of her own experiences with the stage, painful and otherwise, as is plainly seen by the reader, who knows anything of her career. One feature, which the reader can hardly miss, is a recounting of the most marvelous feats of memory, to say nothing of the infinite labor, accomplished by the leading actress in a stock company during one season of work when there is a weekly change of bill. As a basis for this narration Miss Bateman took a story published by the Sunday Post-Dispatch during her residence in St. Louis—a story which was copied repeatedly throughout the United States, and which, featured with her photograph, added materially to her fame as an actress.

"By the Stage Door" is well worth reading.

Walter A. Wyckoff, the author of "The Workers," continues his series on labor conditions in England in the October Scribner's with an account of the very successful experiments made in model cheap lodging houses and tenements in London. The Rowton Houses there are similar to the Mills Hotels in New York.

"Love and the Soul Hunters."

"In Love and the Soul Hunters" Mrs. Craigie returns from drama to fiction, showing how greatly she has profited by her training in plot construction and the management of situation. From the beginning she has been a master of dialogue—epigram and repartee being native to her genius. All of her characteristics, natural and acquired, are found blended in artistic proportion in this her latest and best novel. The worlds of fashion and of finance are drawn upon for the characters, and the interrelation of the two spheres gives opportunity for a rare display of the author's genius for observation and talent for construction. Her princesses and actresses, her English promoters and American financiers, are drawn to the life, if not actually from it, and the expression of their thought and action runs ahead of the actual with the sure prescience of a great creative mind. Particularly in her three main characters, Prince Paul, the debonair hunter of souls, Clementine Gloucester, open-eyed to his conspiracy and disarming it by the simple honesty of her love, and Dr. Felshammer, the protector of Clementine's honor and the arch-enemy of her soul, we have creations which will live ever after in the minds of readers along with those verities of character which the masters of fiction have made to us more real than actual persons.

("Love and the Soul Hunters." By John Oliver Hobbes. 12mo, cloth, 345 pages. Price, $1.50. New York and London: Funk & Wagnals Co.)

Illustrations to the book of Job, in 21 plates, invented and engraved by William Blake. Reproduced in photogravure from the original etchings and in the same size as the originals.

Of the limited edition prepared, a portion has been secured for the American market. This series of designs represent the most noteworthy productions of the famous artist. The designs have never before been reproduced in the size of the originals, or in any such manner as would give an adequate impression of the force and power of the artist's work. Copies of the original are now very scarce and fetch $100 or more. (G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.)

Mr. Pidgin's Latest.

Charles Felton Pidgin in his "The Climax" mangles history, attempts to besmirch the reputations of prominent statesmen long since dead and endeavors to exalt the character of Aaron Burr into almost that of a demigod .In a prefatory note he states that the incidents of the book are almost wholly untrue, but fathers the wish that they were. In view of the fact that he paints Alexander Hamilton as a scheming libertine, Benedict Arnold and Aaron Burr as famous generals and builders of a new America, it is difficult to see why he should wish it so. Mr. Pidgin's efforts will have no effect in reversing the opinions already expressed in American history as to the merits of the personages who figure in his rather mediocre story. (C. M. Clark Pub. Co., Boston.)

"Spiritism or Telepathy?" results of psychical research, by Minot J. Savage, author of "Life Beyond Death," etc.

Dr. Savage here discusses problems that have vexed intelligent minds probably to a greater extent than any others, saving those of the religious life. He states a great number of well-authenticated instances of apparently spiritistic revelation or communication. His discussion is frank and fearless. His theories and testimony merit the widest attention and most thoughtful consideration. (G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.)

The "Emmy Lou" Stories.

The last of Mrs. Martin's Emma Lou stories, "Venus or Minerva?" appears in the September number of McClure's Magazine. The series stands unique among the many varieties of stories of child-life so popular nowadays. It is the first faithful and complete picture of American public-school life in fiction. But what has most endeared the stories to every reader is the character of Emmy Lou herself—the most winsome little heroine since Alice. The publishers have received many letters from readers all over the country making inquiries concerning Emmy Lou, as if she were a real little girl, asking how many more chapters of her history Mrs. Martin was going to write. The personal affection for Emmy Lou has been enhanced by Charles L. Hinton's exquisite pictures of her and her schoolmates and teachers. Seldom have author and artist made such corresponding representations of character. The stories will be published in book form in the fall by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"Separation," by Margaret Lee, is a well-told tale of a couple who learned the lesson of forbearance after having married and been parted by petty differences. The book is not alone interesting as a story, but should prove effective as a sermon in teaching the lesson of bear and forbear. (F. M. Buckles & Co., New York.)

Theodore Cuyler's Biography.

One of the most interesting chapters of Dr. Cuyler's autobiography, published under the title of "Recollections of a Long Life," is his section devoted to Great Britain 60 years ago. As a boy of 20, fresh from Princeton, he crossed the ocean in an old packet. Not at that time resolved to enter the ministry, he was traveling purely for recreation, but his energy and interest in the great writers made him, as he has said, a "lion hunter." He visited Wordsworth at Rydal Mount Cottage; the land of Burns; Mrs. Baillie, then called the "female Shakspeare;" Carlisle in his garret at Chelsea; Dickens and many others. Dr. Cuyler's remarkable memory even of the conversations with these famous persons links the great names of the Victorian era more closely with the present than probably any living American could do. Dr. Cuyler was but a boy—as Carlyle said when he first received him—"You are a very young man" in his broadest Scotch. In America, too, Irving and Whittier were well known to Dr. Cuyler, and Greely and other famous editors, and practically all of the great preachers, hymn writers, temperance workers and statesmen were close friends and sympathetic workers with the sturdy and vigorous Brooklyn pastor.

Heavy Hauling on Residence Street

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I wish to call the attention of the Post-Dispatch, the people's champion, to the use of our streets for heavy hauling. In some of our fine residence streets the drivers of heavy rock wagons drive one wheel on the granitoid gutter, breaking it off and keeping it covered with mud, to the detriment of careful housewives who wish to keep their lawns clean to correspond with well-kept lawns. From Marcus avenue to Euclid avenue on Labadie and Creer avenues, where there are made streets, plenty of room and not a particle of necessity to run on the gutter, the drivers take particular pains to drive on the gutter. Will the Post-Dispatch see if there is not some remedy.

St. Louis. RESIDENT.

Evil Defeats Itself.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It is now apparent that the city of St. Louis, in the great state of Missouri, can reconstruct herself within herself when absolutely necessary. Municipal reform is the great issue of today. There is so much municipal rottenness, fraud and "boodling" practiced by those in power or authority that the people have set themselves about to find a remedy against this existing evil in the body politic. All history teaches that evil defeats itself and this was fairly illustrated in the case of the St. Louis boodlers, but it now behooves all good citizens of St. Louis to set the House of Delegates in order and send the boodlers to the penitentiary as a warning.

Nauvoo, Ill. GEO. A. RITTER.

Irish Prowess.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

W. H. S. takes exception to the statement of a writer in the "Just a Minute" column that the greatest baseball players are Irish. Of the sixty names given as Irish by the Post-Dispatch poet, W. H. S. says, "fully one-third of the number are English and Scotch."

It would be interesting to have him to point out those that are English and Scotch. Little attention would be paid to W. H. S. had his utterances been merely intended to refute the assertion of the Post-Dispatch writer regarding the ballplaying prowess of those of Celtic origin; but, although he attempts to appear fairspoke and with naught of malice in tone or language, there can be detected an undercurrent of jealousy in his efforts to deride other well-proven attributes of physical courage and prowess held by the sons of Erin and their descendants.

Take the Irish out of the national game and there would not be enough men left in the business to put up a practical game. As pugilists they were the only ones to touch the world and defend the American pugilistic banner in foreign lands. In the field of battle the Sixty-ninth regiment of New York saved their American comrades from total annihilation at Bull Run. The Irish brigade saved the day for France at Fontenoy; Irish bodies stopped British bullets in defense of the Boers. While all men fight valiantly for their own fatherland it remains to be seen whether or not other men would fight as valiantly for Paddy's home as he has fought for theirs. T. N.

St. Louis.

A Magnificent Shelter.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The splendid advantages by way of street car service which come to our citizens with the kindly and unrestricted donation of franchises are strongly in evidence at the corner of Union avenue and Suburban Railway.

At this point about 2000 women and children daily transfer from one branch to another on the Suburban road, and requiring to wait from 3 to 20 minutes for the next car.

The officers of the Suburban company have anticipated, by kindly provision, the inconvenience and discomfort to which these passengers might be subjected were they required to linger too long without shelter in a rainstorm or a marrow-freezing blizzard.

The company has erected a magnificent post, securely sunk into the sidewalk, and to this post, at a distance of about seven feet from its base, there is riveted a very stout tin bonnet which radiates fully two feet with its sheltering hood or roof in every direction of the compass.

While this ample shelter does not boast a printed invitation, yet it is surmised that during a blizzard, snowstorm, or even rain the waiting passengers are permitted to huddle under the hood, and to utilize the post as a windbreak.

Is it not idle, in the face of such a bounteous provision, to further carp and cavil with the theories of "long-haired" public ownership cranks?

Let us not be too slow to recognize the advantages to accrue to the public by the concentration of wealth and intelligence when, while standing inside of the driving rain under this hood, we view with admiration such an ingenious and benevolent device.

More About Mushrooms.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Regarding the query of M. M. about mushrooms, will copy the following from a old scrapbook, which may be of interest:

To cook mushrooms, they should be washed, peeled and stems removed.

According to Mrs. Annie P. Dougherty of Boston, who is an expert on culinary knowledge of mushrooms, different species are used for different purposes or dishes, as explained in recipes given here.

This fungi vary in size from one to five inches across the cap, or parasol-like top. There are 300 varieties of edible mushroom which have been tested and found harmless. If "M. M." has been gathering wild specimens, and is in doubt about which are safe to use, I would say that the safe kind have an odor like fresh meat. Avoid mushrooms growing in a filthy place, likewise those which are brilliant in color or having a disagreeable flavor when raw. Poisonous ones are apt to produce a burning sensation on tongue and throat. The only security lies in identifying the species. However, certain poisonous kinds become edible when cooked. It is not to be inferred that a variety is guaranteed by pleasant smell or taste.

Growing mushrooms is an easy way for a woman to earn a little pin money, and their culture is very simple, as it may be done in any cellar.

Stewed mushrooms—rinse and pare one half pound mushrooms; cook very gently until tender in a gill of stock; thicken the gravy with half an ounce of brown thickening; season with pepper and salt.

Little angels—roll a mushroom in a thin slice of bacon, like "pigs in blankets," made of bacon and oysters.

Mushrooms in shells—cooked in stew with bread crumbs and served like oyster patties.

Mushrooms in baskets—cut a large square from the top of shredded wheat biscuit; scoop out the filling, then dip biscuits in cold milk and shake to free the biscuits from all the milk possible; place in an oven five minutes, then remove and fill centers with mushrooms, cooked in cream, and replace top covers.

Cut up mushrooms—after peeling and washing, stew or bake with bread crumbs for half an hour. When done season and add a little lemon juice or sherry, or Madeira.

THE IMMENSITY OF SIBERIA.

A traveler in Siberia says that few people realize the immensity of that country. To think of a single state stretching through 120 degrees of longitude and possessing one-ninth of all the land surface of the globe is staggering. The United States and all its possessions, and all Europe, except Russia, could be put into Siberia, with land enough left over to make 25 states like Connecticut. He had thought of it as a convict settlement only, as most persons do, no doubt. He found it a country of nearly 9,000,000 people, 97 per cent of whom are either natives or voluntary immigrants, and all living better and enjoying more political and religious liberty than people in European Russia have. Where he traveled it was like Minnesota, where wheat, rye and vegetables and strawberries, raspberries and currants grow, and sheep and horses graze unsheltered the year round.—Philadelphia Record.

MRS. PHILPOTT SUES MR. MOTTE

SAYS HE PROMISED TO MARRY HER BUT DID NOT.

WANTS 1-5 OF ALL HE'S GOT

And So She Tries to Make It Hot for the Fickle Man Who a Troth Forgot.

Mrs. Margaret Philpott, a widow, wants $20,000 damages for alleged breach of promise of marriage.

Mrs. Philpott, who spells her name with two t's to distinguish her from the Philpot feud family of Kentucky, filed suit in the St. Louis circuit court Saturday morning against Jesse W. Motte, seeking to recover the sum named.

The plaintiff avers that the defendant proposed matrimony April 28, 1901, promising to marry her as soon as he could return from Indiana, where he said he was going to dispose of some property.

Mrs. Philpott declares that up to date Mr. Motte has not carried out his promise, and that he continues to refuse to wed her.

He is amply able, she avers, to embrace matrimony, having more than $100,000 in his own name.

Mrs. Philpott alleges that at the last interview she had with Mr. Motte he declared his purpose never to marry her and that he called her vile names.

ITALIANS TO CELEBRATE

Today Is the Thirty-second Anniversary of the Unification of Italy.

This is the thirty-second anniversary of the unification of Italy and the fall of the temporal power of the Pope, and the event will be celebrated in St. Louis and throughout the United States by Italian citizens.

Sept. 20, 1870, the army of Victor Emmanuel entered Rome, declaring the Eternal City capital of United Italy.

The celebration in St. Louis will take place Sunday afternoon at 5527 Shaw avenue, the residence of Anita Garibaldi, and will be in the nature of a grand jubilee. There will be a parade in which members of all the local Italian societies will join. In the evening there will be fireworks. Addresses will be made by leading orators in the Italian tongue.

It is expected that about 2000 Italians will be in attendance.

FROM DEATH'S DOOR.

TIMELY RESCUE OF A WOMAN IN OREGON, ILL.

How She Was Saved From a Horrible Death When All Hope Was Gone—The Story in Her Own Words.

"I hope never to go through such an experience again," said Mrs. C. L. McDowell of Oregon, Ill., whose narrow escape from death is best told in her own words.

"I was always weakly," she continued, "but, in 1894, the childbed fever in a very severe form left me in a miserable condition. My blood turned to water and it seemed I could not recover any strength. I was white as a sheet, without any ambition and so low that no one thought I would ever get well. In addition to all this I had neuralgia in its worst form. My grandmother died with neuralgia and I was afraid it would take me away. I cannot tell you how I suffered with it for years. It was terrible."

"But how were they cured?" asked the reporter.

"The best doctors could not help me and I never thought I would get well," replied Mrs. McDowell. "But one day I read an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and I concluded to try them. I found relief in the first box, so I continued to take them. The neuralgia gradually grew less severe until it disappeared altogether, my color returned, I gained in strength and now my blood is in good condition again."

The pills which cured Mrs. McDowell are an unfailing specific for all diseases arising from disorders of the blood and nerves. Among the many diseases they have cured are locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and all forms of weakness either in male or female. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all dealers or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, fifty cents a box; six boxes for two dollars and a half, by addressing Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Do not trust the word of a man who says he has the genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in bulk. None of these famous pills ever leave the factory except in packages bearing the well-known trademark composed of the seven words—"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

CINCINNATI, Sept. 20.—President Roosevelt and party arrived on time at 10 o'clock at the Pennsylvania depot and was escorted to the St. Nicholas Hotel by a long line of carriages with Senator Foraker, Mayor Fleischmann, President Frank W. Foulds, the directors of the Cincinnati fall festival and prominent citizens. Salutes of 21 guns were fired from several points on the hilltops as the train entered the city. The decorations are elaborate all over the city for the fall festival and special attention was paid to the display along the line of march of the parades in the afternoon and evening. The line of march from the station was a continuous throng of people for over a mile.

The President bowed repeatedly to the cheering crowds. An effort was made to give the President a fast morning ride. A large detachment of mounted police headed his carriage while other officers along the line on signal had the streets cleared between the ropes. When most of the carriages were full the start was made, leaving some of the carriages to be filled and "catch up." The mounted police struck a lively trot at once and kept it up, so that the President was in his hotel in less than 20 minutes after leaving his car. He had an informal reception during the forenoon with Senator Foraker introducing visitors. Other members of the party also received friends at their rooms.

The only stop of the special train after leaving Columbus today was at Waynesville, where the President [illegible] people. Crowds were out to see the train at [illegible] suburban [illegible].

The most elaborate arrangements were made for the President and his party here during the day. At noon the luncheon was attended by many prominent men. President Frank W. Foulds then presented the President a gold badge, the same as worn by the festival directors. It was accepted with responsive thanks.

At 2 o'clock a grand military parade, followed by a civic procession, escorted the President and party to the fall festival, where he spoke at 4 p. m., to the business men.

SULLIVAN'S QUEST FOR THE $500,000

He Went to Seattle About Three Weeks Ago.

THINKS BROTHER LEFT ESTATE

BEARS STRIKING RESEMBLANCE TO RICH JOHN SULLIVAN.

Nothing Heard Recently From Cornelius Sullivan, Who Is a Paver in This City and Is Trying to Establish His Claims.

Nothing has been heard recently from Cornelius Sullivan of 1719 Division street, who went to Seattle, Wash., about three weeks ago to personally present himself before the courts of that state as a claimant for the half-million dollar estate left by the late John Sullivan.

His family has received but one letter from him, and Mrs. Sullivan intimated that it was not of a very encouraging nature. His attorneys had already procured all his photographs, and it is claimed by them that the St. Louis claimant bears a striking resemblance to the deceased. He claims to be a brother of John Sullivan, and he has certificates of birth and other documents which he received from Ireland shortly after the death of his alleged relative, to prove his claim.

John Sullivan died about two years ago, and two weeks later Cornelius saw an announcement of the death in a Seattle newspaper. He immediately took steps to prove his relationship, but the settlement of the estate has hung fire ever since. Mrs. Sullivan says, because of the Washington state laws.

DOES NOT BELIEVE STORY.

She does not believe the story that Hannah Callahan, a ragpicker of Cork, Ireland, and Edward Corcoran, also of Cork, who are alleged to be cousins of John Sullivan, have been awarded the estate by the supreme court of the United States. She declares that she believes this to be a malicious falsehood circulated by certain persons who bear her husband ill-will.

She says John Sullivan emigrated from Ireland when her husband was a mere boy, and the latter followed him to America a number of years later. They never saw nor knew of the other's existence after arriving here, she says. John accumulated wealth and Cornelius is a paver who has lived in St. Louis for thirty years and has five grown children.

There was another brother and two sisters in this Sullivan family, but Cornelius was never able to learn whether they were living or dead, although he frequently advertised for them. She claims that there is no doubt that her husband is the brother of John Sullivan, and she is anxiously awaiting the news of his progress at Seattle. The family intended moving a few days ago, but delayed to hear from its head.

115 PERISHED IN PANIC IN CHURCH

2000 Negroes Thought They Heard Warning of Fire.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 20.—A cry of "fight," mistaken for a warning of "fire," caused 2000 negroes in the Shiloh Baptist Church to engage in a mad rush for the doors and windows last night, causing the deaths of 115 persons and the serious injury of many more.

The catastrophe occurred just as Booker T. Washington had closed his address to the national convention of Baptists.

Dead bodies were strewn in every direction, and the ambulance service of the city was insufficient to move them until after 1 o'clock.

The church is the largest house of worship for negroes in Birmingham, and the pastor says there were at least 2000 persons in the edifice when the stampede began.

Instructions had been issued to allow no more to enter, but the negroes forced their way inside the building, and were standing in every aisle; even the entrance to the church was literally packed.

Just as Booker T. Washington finished his address, Judge Billou, a negro lawyer from Baltimore, engaged in an altercation with the choir leader concerning an unoccupied seat and, it is said, a blow was struck. Someone in the choir cried, "They are fighting."

Mistaking the word "fighting" for "fire," the congregation rose en masse and started for the door.

One of the ministers quickly mounted the rostrum and admonished the crowd to keep quiet.

He repeated the word "quiet" several times and motioned to his hearers to be seated.

Again the excited congregation mistook the word "quiet" for "fire," and renewed the struggle to the door.

The men and women crawled over benches, fought their way into the aisles, and those who had fallen were trampled upon.

Two white men who were in the rear of the church when the rush began escaped, and, realizing the seriousness of the situation, rushed to a corner nearby and turned in a fire alarm.

The department came quickly, and the arrival of the wagons served to scatter the crowd which had gathered around the church.

A squad of police was also hastened to the church, and with the firemen finally succeeded in releasing the negroes from their pinioned positions in the entrance.

The various undertaking establishments were crowded this morning with hundreds of persons, searching for missing friends and relatives who might have been killed in the stampede.

Those who have missing friends and relatives have been requested to make a round of the undertaking establishments and a so to make known through the newspapers the names of the missing. The fact that delegates to the convention were here from all parts of the country, many of them being strangers, renders the work of identification somewhat slow. It is expected that at least a dozen of the injured will die. After midnight last night several bodies of persons who were crushed in the panic were found lying in the weeds in the vacant lot adjoining the church. They had scrambled out of the mass of struggling humanity with broken limbs or crushed breasts and had crawled away in this manner to die.

RING WORM AND DANDRUFF.

They Are Each Caused by a Pestiferous Germ.

Ring worm and dandruff are somewhat similar in their origin; each is caused by a parasite. The germ that causes dandruff digs to the root of the hair, and saps its vitality, causing falling hair, and, finally, baldness. Without dandruff there would never be baldness, and to cure dandruff it is necessary to kill the germ. There has been no hair preparation that would do this until the discovery of Newbro's Herpicide, which positively kills the dandruff germ, allays itching instantly and makes hair glossy and soft as silk. At all druggists. Take no substitutes. There is nothing "just as good." Send 10c stamps for samples. The Herpicide Co., 41 Jefferson avenue, Detroit, Mich.

EACH THOUGHT THE OTHER DEAD

THIS HUSBAND AND WIFE

Both Married Second Time and Lived a Few Hundred Miles Apart.

FACT STRANGER THAN FICTION

MAN NOW ASKS THAT HIS FIRST MARRIAGE BE ANNULLED.

Alonzo C. Kinnaman Married Mrs. Lucy Fleck When He Thought His First Wife Dead.

A petition filed in the Circuit Court Friday by Alonzo C. Kinnaman, in business at 214 South Main street, in a suit for the annulment of his marriage to Mrs. Lucy Kinnaman, who was Mrs. Lucy Fleck of 3511 Page boulevard, reveals a story strange as a fictionist's dream.

Kinnaman was married to Mrs. Lucy Fleck 22 years ago and has lived with her since. He wishes the marriage annulled because he has discovered that Mrs. Anna Kinnaman, who was Mrs. Anna Mead, the woman he married in 1876 and afterward believed dead, is alive.

These are the facts in Kinnaman's marital experiences for a remarkable chain of circumstances.

He has wedded two women, both widows. Each woman was older than he, the second Mrs. Kinnaman being 20 years his senior.

He married Mrs. Lucy Kinnaman after he had been told that Mrs. Anna Kinnaman was dead.

Mrs. Anna Kinnaman married a man named Fisher at South Bend., Ind., after she had been informed that Kinnaman had died in St. Louis.

For years Kinnaman and Mrs. Anna Kinnanman, or Mrs. Fisher, have lived within a few hundred miles of each other, each believing that the other was dead.

After twenty-two years, a death, that of Kinnaman's father, at Flora, Ill., led to the discovery that both Kinnaman and Mrs. Kinnaman were alive and well and that each had contracted a second marriage.

Neither Kinnaman nor Mrs. Fasher can be charged with bigamy. They acted in good faith when they entered into the second marriage and in each case the statute of limitation acts as a bar to legal action.

He declares that his conscience prompted him to file the suit for annullment of his second marriage.

Mrs. Lucy Kinnaman, it is said, will fight the anullment proceedings.

She does not want to give up the man, who has been her husband for nearly a quarter of a century.

No children were born to Kinnaman by either union.

CHAPTER I.

In the autumn of 1876, when the country was in the throes of the Hayes-Tilden contest, young Alonzo Kinnaman, a student at Eureka College, Eureka, Ill., found difficulty in studying his daily lesson. Try as he might his vagrant eyes would look across the street and linger on the house where pretty Anna dwelled. The boy knew her well and her story, a story of a short marital life and then widowhood.

She was his senior by a few years and richer in worldly experience, but for all that her face was winsome, and the weeds of widowhood could not conceal the plumpness of her form.

He was young, with a career to be made. She was a widow. It were best, it seemed, to wait.

When love beckons all must follow. So with the collegian and the widow. When the school term ended the student followed his sweetheart to her home near South Bend Ind., and they went quietly to Niles, Mich., where they were wed.

The young couple went back to Kinnaman's home at Flora, Ill., where they lived their honeymoon dream for scarce one year. The blows of circumstances shattered it to bits. Altercations parted the couple, and Mrs. Kinnaman's mother took her daughter back to her girlhood home, near South Bend, Ind. Kinnaman buried his disappointment and sought to make a fortune by railroading. He drifted about the country, holding no communication with his wife or her parents.

In 1880 he reached St. Louis and found a friend, one of his railroad comrades, who had recently been in South Bend. "Your wife is dead," the man said, and Kinnaman believed the tidings his friend carried.

CHAPTER II.

Kinnaman found work in a grocery at Seventh and Market streets in this city. He had decided to make St. Louis his home and never return to South Bend, where, he thought, the romance and tragedy of his life were buried.

Mrs. Lucy Fleck, a widow, who lived across the street from the store, came often to the grocery. She and the young clerk became friendly and as he filled her market basket he discovered that the sorrow of his life was fading from his mind. True, Mrs. Fleck was many years his senior, but like his first wife, widowhood had not dimmed her attractions. Kinnaman became convinced that life yet held happiness for him.

Soon the counter courtship terminated in marriage—a union which has existed happily for 22 years. Kinnaman has worked steadily and earned money.

The house remained childless, but no cloud came until the death of his father at Flora last spring brought the revelation.

CHAPTER III.

Mr. Kinnamn, Sr., died, and the investigation incident to settling his estate and the search for all heirs developed the fact that the woman that Kinnaman had first married was alive and living near South Bend, Ind. A relative informed Kinnaman.

He was thunderstruck by the tidings. He realized that if the news was true he had never had the right to marry his present wife, and he feared that trouble would ensue.

In his perplexity he sought the advice of Attorney J. Hugo Grimm, who started a correspondence with E. Miller, a brother of the first Mrs. Kinnaman, at South Bend.

The reply to the lawyer's letter convinced him that the first Mrs. Kinnaman was alive and living in the Indiana city. Mr. Grimm advised Kinnaman to go to South Bend and meet the sweetheart of his boyhood.

Kinnaman went. He found his wife and learned that she had married a man named Fisher. She had been deluded by the story which had deceived Kinnaman. Years after they had separated she was told that he was dead and after waiting a long while and failing to receive message from him, she had married again.

Kinnaman returned to St. Louis. He told the story to his present wife. She cleaved to him with a woman's faith and declared that evil circumstance could not separate them.

This was in July. Kinnaman worried over the problem for months. Finally he decided that there was but one solution—a separation.

His conscience, he declares, would not permit him to live with Mrs. Lucy Kinnaman, while Mrs. Anna Kinnaman was alive.

A week ago he left his home at 3511 Page boulevard and Friday he filed the suit for an annulment of his marriage to the woman who has been wife to him through more than two decades.

DIGGERS FOUND WOMAN'S BONES

WORKMEN WERE MAKING A CISTERN IN ALTON.

NO EVIDENCES OF A CASKET

Cemetery Near the Spot Fifty Years Ago—No Bones Unearthed at This Exact Place Before.

Workmen digging a cistern at the home of Fred Lehne on Seventh street, Alton, Friday afternoon, came upon the bones of a human being imbedded in the ground.

The bones are those of a woman.

A cemetery was maintained a short distance from this spot 50 years ago, and remains of persons buried there have been dug up many times, but there was always some evidence of the casket.

In this case there is no evidence of the body having been placed in a casket.

"ANTIS" SLIGHT MAJORITY

Only Two Votes More Than the "Regular Republicans in St. Clair County.

The "anti-machine" Republicans of St. Clair County, Ill., have a very slight majority in the country convention being held Saturday at Belleville.

This was shown on a vote regarding the appointment of a committee on resolutions. Daniel McGlynn of East St. Louis, "machine" leader, moved that five men be appointed. Frank McConathy of Belleville, the anti-leader, moved to amend the motion by having one member from each township on the resolutions committee.

McConathy's amendment carried by a vote of 54 to 52.

Temporary officers of the convention are John J. Faulkner, East St. Louis, chairman; E. H. Smiley, O'Fallon, secretary; Adolph Dorsey, Brooklyn, assistant secretary.

ATTENDED FUNERAL DISGUISED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Disguised as a woman, Simon S. Shimberg attended the funeral of his father, eluding detectives who were on the watch to arrest him on a charge of forgery.

All trains were watched from the time Mr. Shimberg died. Simon, in woman's attire, got off one from Buffalo, at 7 a. m., and went to his father's house about 10 o'clock. He wore a black dress and hat and a heavy veil. Being small, he could easily pass for a woman.

Shimberg's relatives tried to persuade him to stay away from the funeral, but he declared he would prefer to run the risk of arrest in order to see the body of his father. After attending the funeral services and witnessing the burial during which time he was in the company of three officers of the law, who did not know him, he boarded a train, still wearing his disguise and, according to his friends, is now in Canada.

NEWS OF THE SPORTING WORLD

M'GRAW AND HEDGES CONFER OVER STARS

Giants' Manager Is Here to Look After Matthewson and Bowerman, but His Visit It Is Thought Will Be Futile.

McGraw and Hedges met finally, today at 10 a. m.

McGraw is the "Johnny" McGraw of St. Louis, Baltimore and New York, and Hedges is Mr. R. L. of the name, secretary of the Amercian League St. Louis team. The place of meeting was the Lindell Hotel.

Upon the result of the meeting hinges the possession of the crack battery of the Giants, Mathewson and Bowerman.

Mr. McGraw is worried about reports indicating that the New York players had signed with the St. Louis American League Club. He comes here from Chicago to inquire of Mr. Hedges what he had done in the Mathewson matter and to find out if possible if the affair had gone as far as signing of the battery and if advance money had been paid.

Mr. McGraw did not admit all this. In fact, the oyster-like Muggsy secreted himself in his room and refused to be interviewed—he was then awaiting the arrival of Mr. Hedges, and did not care to have outsiders on hand when the matter was discussed.

Mr. Hedges was seen in the Lindell Hotel at 9:45 and stated that he did not know what McGraw wanted with him. He said he presumed it was in regard to the Mathewson affair, and that he himself was prepared to make no statements about the matter.

With that he adjourned and was lost in the depths of the corridor.

If Mr. McGraw's sole object in visiting St. Louis is the securing of the New York battery, he may as well return to New York. While the local management is noncommital regarding the position of the New York men it is certain, as stated in the Post-Dispatch previously, that Mathewson and Bowerman will play in St. Louis next season, unless they jump an American League contract.

There is a possibility that exigencies of the American League may require them to play with the New York American League team, but that is remote.

McGraw has made several fruitless trips about the country, but this one will probably end, as have all the rest—in nothing.

"MARRIED AT MIDNIGHT"

Miss Adelaide Dunville of St. Louis and Charles L. Lewis Wedded at Edwardsville.

"Married at Midnight" might be the title of the book were the romance of Miss Adelaide I. Dunville and Charles L. Lewis written.

A couple giving these names procured a marriage license at Edwardsville, Ill., late Wednesday night and were married by Rev. Francis M. Wilson, an Episcopal clergyman of Edwardsville.

Miss Dunville's address was given as St. Louis. Lewis said his home was New Orleans. They stated that they were employed in the same office, in St. Louis.

Accompanying the couple were Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Craighead, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. J. Hopkins and A. A. Craighead of St. Louis.

FIST MIGHTIER THAN TONGUE

Two Women Abandoned the Slander Weapon for the Pugilistic—Advised to "Make Up."

The Saturday matinee in the City Hall police court was enlivened by the case of Mrs. Bridget Paylor, who instituted prosecution against Mrs. Annie Boyle on the charge that she disturbed her peace.

Both women reside at 2110 Division street, and up to a few days ago were bosom friends. The break came, so the testimony Saturday before Acting Judge Robinson developed, when Mrs. Boyle sent Mrs. Paylor to the butcher shop to buy her a round steak.

"Get the best 15-cent piece of beef in the house," were Mrs. Boyle's orders.

But alas for Mrs. Paylor's judgment, or rather her ability to please Mrs. Boyle.

It wouldn't do to tell Mrs. Boyle when she expressed displeasure at the steak brought to her that the beef trust had "bulled" the market to such an extent that it was impossible to get meat bargains nowadays.

So Mrs. Boyle and Mrs. Paylor, for the time being espousing the pugilistic principle that the fist is mightier than the tongue, quarreled, and according to the evidence heard by Judge Robinson, struck each other several blows in the face.

But who struck the first blow seemed to the policeman who was called about as difficult a problem as finding Kelly.

The bluecoat didn't attempt to solve it. Mrs. Paylor preferred the charge, but after Judge Robinson had listened to 31 witnesses he was more at sea than ever to fathom the mystery. So he discharged the two women with the kindly caution that they ought to kiss and make up.

Hoffman-Mueller Nuptials.

Next Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock the wedding of August Hoffman and Miss Olga Mueller will take place at the home of the bride's mother, widow of the late Charles Mueller, at 3812 South Broadway.

Rev. Richard Kretzschmar of the Emmaus Evangelical Lutheran Church will officiate.

The engagement of these popular South St. Louis young people was announced last Christmas. Mr. Hoffman owns a jewelry store on South Broadway, two doors from his fiancee's residence. Miss Mueller is a leader in her social circles.

Fined for Driving Maimed Horse.

FIRE RAGED ON OCEAN LINER.

St. Paul's Plight Was Kept From the Women Passengers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The American Line steamship St. Paul, which arrived today, reported that on the voyage a successful fight had been made against a fire which raged for 12 hours in the clothes room. The fact that the ship was afire was kept from the women passengers, although the men of the first cabin were made aware of the possible danger.

THE HAMMER COLUMN

We respectfully offer the following advice to football nuisances:

Get out your chrysanthemum.

Take your top coat out of the moth balls.

Hunt up that cane you won last summer at the garden, 20 throws for a quarter.

Get your best girl to decorate it with a hair ribbon

Get your voices carefully filed.

And by all means shake out your back hair, don't forget the hair—for the football season opens today at Forest Park.

After you have fulfilled all the requisites mentioned above, you will carefully secrete yourself on a street car, make your way to the High School gridiron about an hour before the game starts—that is to say 2 p. m.—and plant yourself on the side lines, taking care to get as much in everybody's way as the circumstances permit.

And be sure you limp—that is a forgotten requisite. It is certain to excite pity in some feminine breast that doubtless heaves sympathetically in the stand. Taken in conjunction with your untamed hair, the aforementioned bit of femininity will probably get the idea that you are a football player of renown and that in some desperate melee in front of the enemy's goal, where 14 of the opposing eleven were endeavoring to stop your singlehanded efforts to score, you were kicked, gouged and bitten into submission, after heroically thrusting the ball over the line for a score. Of course the limp was occasioned by the desperateness of your struggle.

When every one else has retired from the side lines but the coaches and substitutes and the game is about to begin, you must rush as hurriedly as your limp will permit up to one of the coaches—be sure this is in full view of the spectators—and confer with him deeply, heavily, as if some momentous matter were under debate. It doesn't matter what you have to say is, "What's the name of that left end over there?" or that you are running serious risks of having the coach named kick the seat of your trousers around front—make your impression on the crowd, which will surely think you are director-in-chief of the works.

TELL OF THE MISTAKES.

Having permitted the game to finally start, you will split your throat deliriously, taking particular care to tell everybody just what mistakes were made. Be sure and not overlook one—it is fundamental that you call attention to all of them.

Don't hesitate because you are ignorant of the game—criticise heavily, if you would be yourself. The chief object of criticism, anyway, is to make a noise. It always attracts attention, and that's the height of ambition.

If there happen to be several of you on the field at once, and there seldom wants many of you at a football game, it becomes a little more difficult to monopolize the popular eye. The only advice to be given is to be more conspicuous than ever, if that be possible, put a higher pressure steam on your voice and get yourself all but thrown off the field, if you can.

MEET THE LADY FRIEND.

And when the cruel war is over, the ambulances have taken care of the slain, and the physician is busy in his tent baling liniment out of a barrel, carefully hasten to the park gate, if there be one, and await the arrival of a certain lady friend, pretend to be greatly surprised at seeing her, limp painfully up to her, and in the course of casual conversation let her know modestly that it was tough luck you could not get into the game, and that you were sure you could have thrown off Fullback's tackle at the critical moment, instead of going tamely to grass and losing the game as Billy Halfback did.

If you have done all this, you will have accomplished all that can be reasonably expected of you. As the season advances it is hoped you will develop.

Your work will be carefully watched during the season.

"I TOLD YOU SO."

We are this morning enjoying the fascination of repeating that phrase: "I told you so." Next to getting a check unexpectedly there are few things that can equal the delight this occupation lends, and we are accordingly enjoying good spirits.

An early knock in our column forecasted the closing of the Corbett-McGovern fight, notwithstanding the reports to the contrary from Louisville. The law and the pugilist have had too many tilts for the outcome to be at all uncertain when these two meet.

We sympathize with the Louisville merchant while congratulating ourself. We had intended sitting at the ringside, had the affair taken place.

To have attained that position would have profited the Louisville merchant, but at the expense of the money we took in on Jordan yesterday, and really, we need the money.

We are informed that there are others in the same predicament and hence the Apellate Court of Kentucky may, after all, be looked upon in the light of a general benefactor.

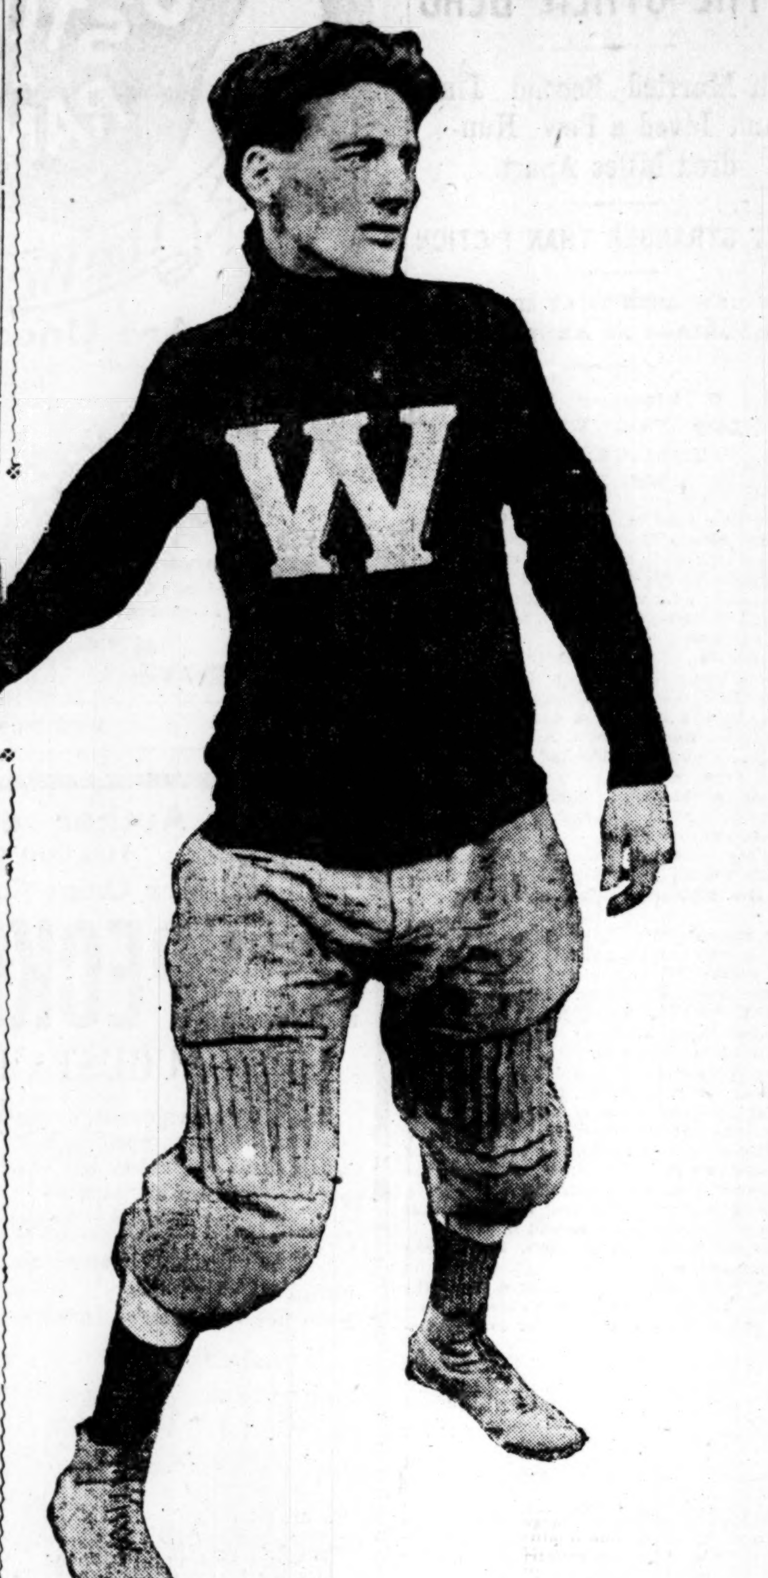

WE OFFER CONDOLENCES.

We offer our condolences to Young Corbett and McGovern, however. When two people want to fight and can't we protest. It is very hard cheese. It is so seldom that two fighters want to do anything more than divide the money that a real scrap ought to be encouraged. Judge Field, in his decision granting the injunction against the fighters, expressed an opinion that the affair would be a real fight. We believe with him and had we been in his chair would have reversed our own decision. Injunctions ought to be granted only against fights that are not real fights.

We observe in dispatches that a gentleman named Mullen, who participated in the engagement between the Cardinals and the Rochesters, yesterday at Rochester, Pa., was put out of the running by being hit in the head with a pitched ball, Alec Pearson of the Browns doing the act. It is related that Mullen may be seriously injured.

We respectfully suggest that the brutal game of baseball be prohibited by statute, and that future games be restrained by injunction as barbarous and subversive of the public welfare. It is time all these fatal sports, such as pugilism, baseball, golf and ping-pong, be legislated against.

WASHINGTON'S 1903 FOOTBALL CAPTAIN

RIGHT END GORDON.

'FRISCO NOW TALKED OF FOR CORBETT-M'GOVERN GO

Believed to Be the Only Place Where It Can Be Held—Sadness in the Camps of the Little Fighters.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 20.—At the camps of both fighters the news that the injunction against the Corbett-McGovern fight had been sustained was received with great regret. Corbett seemed heart-broken when he was told that there was no chance for the fight to take place. It is now believed that only in Frisco can the fight take place.

"It is just my luck," said he. "Here I have been training for two months and am in great shape, and then there can be no fight. That makes about four straight contests which have been called off for some reason or other. I don't know what we will do about it. It is too soon to make plans, but I'm willing to go anywhere to have the fight come off."

Corbett and McGovern will meet this afternoon and talk over the future. At present they cannot tell what they can do.

SAYS HUSBAND CHOKED HER.

Mrs. Fortner Swears Out a Warrant Against Him.

Harvey Fortner, a Spring avenue car conductor, is charged with assault and battery in a warrant issued Saturday at the instance of his wife, Mrs. Treesy Fortner.

The Fortners lived at 3553 Cass avenue. Last Thursday, Mrs. Fortner told the prosecuting officer, Miss Annie Cahill of 1317 Clark avenue called at her home, and this incensed her husband, who put her (Mrs. Fortner) from the house and choked her. Since then she has made her home with Miss Cahill. Mrs. Fortner also said that her husband had taken her 2-year-old child from her and was forcibly detaining him at the Cass avenue address.

Prescription No. 2851 by Elmer & Amend will not cure all complaints, but it will cure rheumatism.

MADE WHITES KISS NEGROES.

Teacher Lost Job for Adopting Method of Ending Quarrel.

BELLAIRE, O., Sept. 20.—The board of education has demanded and received the resignation of J. O. Deafenbaugh, principal of one of the schools, because he compelled several white girls in the school to kiss the negro girls with whom the former had quarrels. The action of the principal caused great indigation among the parents of the white pupils.

HAD HER HUSBAND'S PHOTO.

Mrs. Guerst Objected to Miss O'Hara's Possession of It.

Mrs. Mayme Guerst was fined $20 in the First District Police Court Saturday morning on the charge of having disturbed the peace of May O'Hara of 1031 North Seventh street.

Testimony was to the effect that Mrs. Guerst's husband attended a picnic with Miss O'Hara and as a memento of the occasion gave the young woman a button photo of himself.

The photo caused all the trouble and it was alleged that Mrs. Guerst struck Miss O'Hara because she refused to give it up.

TODAY'S RECEIPTS.

Native cattle	300
Southern cattle	300
Hogs	1,500
Sheep	300
Horses and mules	100

NATIVE CATTLE—The market closed today for the week with the usual small run of offerings on sale and with prices about steady in general.

Arrivals during the week were of a miscellaneous character and met with all kinds of experiences, selling anywhere from steady to fully a quarter lower, according to general views, with more decline noted by some salesmen on the right green kinds.

More dealers called the week's decline 15@25c than any other way, while some called it a flat quarter lower on the general trade, and some could see but little change in the best steers on sale. Western steers were in pretty good supply and met with a cold reception, selling largely around a quarter lower. The worst feature of the whole trade centered upon short-fed green steers and more complaint about them was registered than on any other class.

BEEF STEERS, 1300 TO 1600 POUNDS.

Steers average 1300 to 1600 lbs sold at $6.05@7.25, the bulk of sales at $6.75@7. The quality was fair and the weights ranged from 1310 to 1539 lbs. During the previous week the full range was $7@8, with the bulk at $7.25.

BEEF STEERS, 1200 TO 1290 POUNDS.

The steers in this class ranged from $4.25@7.50, the bulk sold at $6@6.75. During the previous week the full range was $5.60@7.25; the bulk sold at $6.60@6.85.

BEEF STEERS, 1000 TO 1190 POUNDS.

The representation in this class in large lots or loads sold in extremes from $4.10@6.60, the bulk sold at $5@6.15. During the previous week the full range was $4.10@7.10, and the bulk sold at $4.80@5.25.

BUTCHER STEERS, 650 TO 990 POUNDS.

The full rangee in this class was $3@5.50, the bulk of sales at $3.80@4.05. During the previous week the full range was $3.25@4.50, with the bulk at $3@4.15.

BUTCHER CATTLE.

Compared with a week ago the bulk of the cow trade shows a decline of around a quarter and the best kinds on sale lost around 10@15c, though strictly choice heifers if dry-lot are quotable at steady prices. Canners lost 10@15c, while bulls and calves are around steady with a week ago.

COWS, HEIFERS AND MIXED LOTS.

Heifers sold at a full range of $2.25@6.50 and cows at $1@4.50. Heifer supplies were very plain; best full loads selling at $4@4.25. The bulk of the cows sold at $2.50@4; bulk of the heifers at $3@4.25. During the previous week the bulk of all the cows sold at $2.50@4. Canning cows sell at $1.75@2.75. Mixed butcher cattle sold from $2.40@4, the bulk at $2.70@3.10.

VEAL CALVES.

Veal calves sold largely at $6@6.75 per 100 pounds and the full range for veals was $5@7.

BULLS, STAGS AND OXEN.

The bulls sold at $2.25@4.50, the bulk at $2.65@3.25; stags and oxen at $3@4.25.

STOCKERS AND FEEDERS.

Receipts of stockers and feeders during the week have averaged pretty good in quality. Trade opened fairly good, but by the middle of the week some decline resulted, owing to a lack of outside influence, making the general loss 10@15c compared with a week ago, with common stockers a drug on the market and about as dull as they ever get. Bulls were in fair supply and in slack demand, showing some weakness. There was a small trade in heifers and a dull business. Traders are well supplied with the best stuff they have carried over any week recently and it can be bought very reasonable, and it will pay the country not to overlook this opportunity.

STOCK STEERS AND FEEDERS.

In this class the range was $2.30@4.80, their weights ranged from 488 to 1155 pounds and the quality was fair to good. The bulk of all the stockers, 400 to 750 pounds, sold at $2.90@3.90, and the 800 to 1000 pound feeders sold largely at $3.90@4.50.

STOCK HEIFERS AND YEARLINGS.

Stock cows and heifers sold at $2@3.25, with the bulk at $2.65@3, and yearlings at a full range of $2.50@5.50, mainly at $4@5.

STOCK BULLS.

Stock bulls sold mainly at $3@3.25 and the full range was $2.50@3.50.

SOUTHERN CATTLE—The market closed for the week in the quarantine division with about the usual small amount of business, very few offerings being on sale.

Compared with a week ago cows show a general decline of 10@15c, though extreme declines were more. Bulls were steady to firm, as they have been all week. Calves firmed up a little, and after some variation close about the same as a week ago. For the week steers show a general loss of 10@20c, with some exceptional cases showing still more decline.

During the week Texas and Indian Territory steers averaging 697 to 1208 pounds sold at a full range of $2.90@4.85, most of them going at $3.25@4.15. Cows and heifers brought $1.75@4.15, bulk, $2.60@3.15; stags and oxen, $2.25@2.60; bulls, $2.25@2.85, and calves at $3@10.50 per head, the bulk of them going at $7@9.25.

HOGS—About the usual small run of hogs was on sale today for the closing day of the week. The quality was only fair. Demand slow; prices 5c lower.

SHEEP—Only a few sheep on the market today and they were direct to packers.

Just a moderate run of sheep arrived during the first four days of the present week and as some of them were not for sale, the supply was small. The quality so far as the sheep was concerned was quite good, but good to choice lambs were scarce. The week opened with the demand extra good and values advanced on Monday 15@25c on all decent mutton stock, but this was lost later in the week, so that the market Thursday was on much the same basis as the close of last week. Inferior and all lambs that class as only fair were extremely slow sale all week, as there was practically no demand for them. Stockers held about steady but are 25c lower than two or three weeks ago.

HORSES—The fall trade is improving in the horse market. This week is good indication for a very good fall southern trade. The eastern business has been active and firm. The only trouble with this branch of the market is that receipts of the good class are not large enough to satisfy all demands.

It is the general opinion that it will take a few more weeks to compass the substantial opening of the southern cotton mule demand. There is now a little trade, but it is too early and dealers are not expecting the activity at this time to be very noticeable. The trade is looking forward to the cotton mule season with considerable hope. This has been a much more propitious year in every way and it is naturally expected that plant[illegible] ers will be able to buy plenty of mules and pay high prices for them.

MILKERS.

During the week the milkers sold at a full range of $15 to $65 per cow and calf, the bulk of sales being at $30 to $45.

SPECIAL RANGE HORSE SALE.

The biggest range horse sale of the year at this market will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 23. There have been seven others this season, but this will surpass them all. There will be 1500 head in this sale and the quality will be better than ever before. Three hundred head will be Indian ponies and there will be horses for everybody. There will be no mistake about these horses being on hand. They are now on the road and will arrive about two days in advance of the sale. This sale will be held by Campbell & Reid Western Sales Stable Co.

DAILY MARKET AND FINANCIAL RECORD

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY WAS VERY STRONG

TRUST STOCK MORE THAN RECOVERED ITS DIVIDEND TODAY.

Trade on the St. Louis Stock Exchange was well diversified Saturday, and prices also held up very well. New York's weakness and the ominous expressions on the monetary outlook given vent by eastern bankers counted for extremely little and, in fact, have all along been regarded as entirely foreign to conditions here, which have never been better.

The splendid showing being made by the various banks, under call of the comptroller of the currency, is at present a bull "mainstay" here. Mississippi Valley Trust was quite a strong card today, rising $2 to $460, ex-dividend $3, or equivalent to $463. Buying of this stock was entirely by one firm and selling well scattered.

Remaining trust company stocks were very complacent and this section without feature otherwise.

Missouri Trust had an additional backset of 50 cents to $127 and Germania Trust held at $225.

The weakest feature among bank shares was Mechanics' National, a buying offer at $407.50 being accepted, being a net falling off of $2.

National Bank of Commerce was stationary and closed $405.75 bid, after bringing $405.50 and $406.

The usual good quest prevailed for Third National at $337 and Fourth National at $355, a small lot of the latter stock being offered at $360.

Of Merchants'-Laclede National a broken amount sold at $301, with more wanted at $300.

The highest price of the week was the close on Central Coal & Coke common Saturday, $73 being paid for 200 shares, with more offered and $72.75 bid.

Consolidated Coal Co. shares were also wanted at $22, with a seller at $22.50.

Bids on St. Louis Transfer were advanced $2, to $75, but did not elicit any selling commands.

Bell Telephone of Missouri was also inquired for again at $170.

An aggregate of $17,000 United Railways 4s were taken at $87.

St. Louis Transit brought $30.12½ and United Railways preferred was as passive as ever and unchanged.

ST. LOUIS MONEY MARKET.

Business was active in banking and trust circles Saturday. There was an active demand for money and counter business was large. Rates were firm at 5@5½ per cent for call and 5½@6 per cent in the extreme for time loans. Clearings were $6,320,678, with balances of $708,294.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—There was an active and well-distributed demand for stocks at the opening which carried prices up a fraction all around. First sales of St. Paul were of 3500 shares at an extreme advance of ⅝, and the stock's gain was made subsequently a full point. Otherwise there was no conspicuous feature in the market.

Strength was renewed in the stocks which figured most prominently in yesterday's rise. These included Canadian Pacific, Illinois Central, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Great Northern preferred and St. Paul. The latter made the maximum advance of two points, touching 198. The improvement in these stocks had a sympathetic effect on the entire list, but the Western, Pacific and Southwestern stocks did not make much response. Industrial stocks were in some demand, Consolidated Gas, Rubber Goods preferred and the U. S. Rubber stocks gaining a point or over.

A renewed advance in St. Paul to 198⅝ served to sustain the market and there were advances of a point or more in several minor stocks before the appearance of the bank statement. The disclosure that the reserves of the banks showed a deficit of $1,642,050 below the legal requirement turned the whole market downward on active dealings. St. Paul lost all its gain and earlier gains all around were wiped out. Gains established ran to a point in Missouri Pacific, Southern Pacific, Texas & Pacific and B. R. T. and was active and easy.

GRAIN MARKET BY TELEGRAPH.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Regardless of prohibition of grain corners by the Illinois Superior Court, the action in wheat at the opening today indicated another severe squeezing process going on at the hands of the leading elevator house. For some time it has been understood that Sept. wheat was congested in few hands. Last Saturday, when Judge Chytraus rendered his decision against the marginal powers of the Board of Trade, Sept. wheat suffered. A week of fairly good export demand and a night of bad weather, with rains northwest and more to follow, frightened the shorts badly. Commission houses that have been short heavily for customers today conceded that they could get Sept. from but one quarter. Little stuff was offered. Receipts continued fairly improved, but cables were somewhat higher and it was feared that the rains would retard movement. Sept. in the first 20 minutes of trade jumped ⅛c, opening unchanged to ⅝c up at 73¼c to 74¼c, and selling at 75⅝c. Other options were strong in sympathy. Dec. started at 69¼c to 69⅝c and advanced to 69½@69⅝c. Local receipts were 200 cars, 5 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 925 cars, making a total for the three points of 1125 cars, against 902 last week and 1422 a year ago.

A CLEAN-UP OF THE GRAIN SHORTS

THEIR BUYING ADVANCES SPECULATIVE PRICES IN ALL CEREALS.

LONGS WERE THE SELLERS

Weather Was Unfavorable and That Helped—Foreign News Bearish—Receipts Good.

Grain.

The week ended with a round up of the bears that must have cleaned out a large line of shorts who had been holding out against the advancing tendency of the markets. Chicago handed out the "tip" that all September shorts were in danger and most of them apparently played it. Their buying shoved prices up some, but the entire gain was not held and the close was heavy. Longs were the chief sellers, but there are plenty of bulls left in the situation and they need plenty of strong news to help them to good profits. The legitimate situation is lacking in bull conditions, too.

WHEAT—More bad weather in the Northwest, rains having fallen pretty generally both in the states and in the British provinces, gave the markets a further impetus upward at the opening. A cry from Chicago of "Shorts, get out of September," also had its effect in keeping the specter of manipulation before the trade. Liberal receipts continued to show, 120,900 bu arriving here, which though 32,600 bu less than last Saturday, was three times the amount in a year ago. At Minneapolis and Duluth the 925 cars in compared with 780 a week ago, 1246 a year ago and 406 two years ago. The early cables were not stimulating, Liverpool having advanced ¼d, which was not up to America's gain of the day before, and Paris was ¼c lower.

There was considerable pressure on the buying side during the first trading hour, and though a good many longs taking profits, an advance of ¼@⅜c. December opened with sales at 66⅝@66⅞c to 66⅞c, and sold off to 66⅝c, up to 66⅞@67c, and back to 66⅝@66⅞c. May opened ⅛c up, at 69⅜c, sold up to 69⅝c, and then offered at 69½c.

The market became extremely dull subsequently, and late in the day eased off, the offerings so much greater than buying demands, shorts apparently having quit, that the effect was bearish. Even the very large clearances for the day, these in flour and wheat 970,000 bu, failed to help the market. Nothing in the way of export business was heard of and all foreign advices unfavorable. At close the market was ⅛c below the top and ¼c above Friday.

December sold at 66⅞@67c, off to 66⅝c to 66c, and latter asked at close. May sold late at 69½c, September nominally 65⅝c, not having been traded in.

Primary receipts today were 1,382,000 bu, against 1,114,000 bu one year ago, and for week 8,959,000 bu, compared with 7,126,000 bu last week and 7,893,000 bu for corresponding week last year. Since July 1 they amount to 73,029,000 bu, against 77,530,000 bu for same period last year, and 70,816,000 bu two years ago. Shipments for the day were 793,000 bu, against 664,000 bu a year ago, and for week 4,276,000 bu, against 3,143,000 bu last week and 3,332,000 bu one year ago.

Cash market—Received 2949 sacks and 122 cars local and five cars through. Firm and higher for choice grades of soft winter, which found the usual number of city and outside milling buyers who cleaned up the small offerings; but lower qualities plentiful and dragging at buyers' price, mostly going to elevator. No apparent demand for elevator wheat, which offered at ½c over September for No. 2 red in the house and 1c under December for No. 3 red loaded East Side. By sample delivered—No. 2 red at 67@67½c West and 65@68½c East Side; No. 3 red at 65@66 West, and 65@66½c East Side; No. 4 at 60c for low to 64c for choice; rejected at 55c to 60c. Sacked in elevator—No. 2 red at 65⅞c; No. 3 red at 62⅞c; No. 4 at 59⅞c. Hard winter slow sale, but stronger. No. 2 at 70c for choice; No. 3 at 65c to 67c; No. 4 at 61c to 63c; No. 2 mixed at 66c.

CORN—Chicago also sent out a warning on September corn, advising shorts to get out, which influenced the whole market bullishly by keeping alive the fear of manipulation and standing off bearish speculation, besides causing some covering by traders who already had sales made. Cold weather in the Northwest affected the market, too, as frosts were prospective and their effect was feared for the crop still unmatured. Receipts were larger and the 33,300 bu in here ahead of the 28,400 bu last year. Liverpool was unchanged.

The buying appeared to be confined chiefly to shorts, who found fair offerings from people who were long, though this did not prevent ⅝c advance. December was most sought after and sold as high as May had bids. December opened at 37⅞c, went down to 37⅝c, up to 38¼c and off to 37⅞c. May sold at 38c, later had 38¼c bid and then sold again at 38c. September sold at 57c and 57⅛@57¼c bid later.

The balance of the day was taken up by moderate and rather desultory trading, in which shorts continued the principal buyers and longs the sellers. So much more was for sale than wanted late that prices eased off and the close was ⅜@½c below the top and ⅛@¼c above the close of day before.

December sold at 37⅞c up to 38¼c and back to 37⅝@37¾c, closing at 37¾@37⅞c bid; May had 38⅛c bid, sold at 38c, was offered at 37⅞c and latter bid at close; September sold at 57c to 57⅝c and at close 57¼c asked.

Primary receipts were 397,000 bu for the day, against 321,000 bu one year ago, and for week 2,088,000 bu, against 1,957,000 bu last year for same week. Shipments for the day, 291,000 bu, against 542,000 bu a year ago, and for week 1,518,000 bu, against 1,830,000 bu last year. Clearances on 1600 bu.

Cash market—Received 25 cars local and 12 cars through. Lower, though futures were higher. Offerings in excess of demand, which exceedingly limited. By sample delivered—No. 2 at 59¼@59½c; No. 3 at 59c and No. 2 yellow also at 59c east side: No. 2 white at 60c to west side; No. 3 white at 59c east side.

OATS—The tone of the market was firm, influenced by corn, but there was no trading. Bids were 27½c for December and 28½c for May. Receipts locally were 78,300 bu, compared with 60,000 bu one year ago.

In December there was some trading at 27⅝c to 27½@27⅝c, and bids of 29⅛c made for September, 28⅝c for May, 28c for October and November, but little effort made to trade.

Primary receipts 619,000 bu, against 325,000 bu a year ago, and shipments 4,204,000 bu, against 363,000 bu last year. Receipts for week were 274,000 bu, against 1,846,000 bu a year ago for same week, and shipments 2,180,000 bu against 1,516,000 bu last year. Clearances were 105,000 bu.

RYE—Stronger, but dull and considerable carried over. No. 3 sold at 46@47c delivered east side, and No. 2 held at 49c, with 48½c bid.

FLAXSEED—Steady at $1.33 bid for spot and $1.32 to arrive, a car of better selling.

Cash market—Received 49 cars local and 9 cars through. Higher for mixed, for which a good demand, though insufficient to clean up offerings; white dull and easy, except No. 4, that selling fairly well. By sample delivered—No. 2 at 29½@30c; No. 3 at 28@29c and running to white at 30c; No. 4 at 27½@28c; rust proof at 30@31c; No. 3 white at 31@32c; No. 4 white at 29@31c. No. 2 white quotable at 34c.

Trade Topics.

Writing Dickson & Cunningham, under date of Sept. 5, Griffith, Williams & Co., of Liverpool, say that Argentine wheat was scarcely offered, but cable reports from the crop continued optimistic, stating prospects splendid, but rain needed soon. The present is a very critical time to that crop. Russia continued to speak well of harvest, but Belgium, Holland and Germany reported very bad harvest weather, injuring all crops, but principally rye, which has been lying out in the west for some time. In France bad weather in the north, where about a third of the crop carried, was interfering with harvest, and fine weather urgently needed, as crops secured in other districts uneven and yield disappointing. India reported better rains, and in New South Wales and Queensland, Australia, fair rains in pastoral districts, the wheat-growing districts still in urgent need of rain.

Dantzig reports that the rye crop there (eastern Germany) was harvested partly wet, but will be usable mixed with dry Russian. Wheat, barley and oats promise good yields and fine quality. From other parts of Germany the harvest reports are also more favorable.

Broomhall says the estimates of the Roumanian maize crop are being reduced, some puting yield as low as 35 per cent of last year's out-turn. Grain is coming in freely, 6000 tons arriving daily by rail, besides large quantities in lighters. Last year's maize crop was 22,000,000 quarters, so that 35 per cent would give some 9,000,000 quarters, or a quantity equal to the very short crops of 1899 and 1894.

A letter from a Sedalia (Mo.) real estate firm that cribs and holds corn to the J. H. Teasdale Commission company, says corn will be ready to handle in a very short time. "There has never been anything to equal the corn crop in Pettis County that we have this year," the writer says. Some ears of corn measured 14 to 16 inches in length and well filled. He finds few farmers have bought cattle to feed, as at the price they would have to pay for feeders it would be a loss of time and corn to feed thm. He does not look for much feeding. Corn, he believes, can be bought at 25c when it moves, and with the quality he knows it to be, it will shell out enough over what it weighs out to pay all expenses of shelling.

To Lamping: There is a scattered short interest in September wheat that, I think, will put the price higher. Armour has been very quiet in the pit the last two days in this September, but I believe he will part with a block on the quiet. I am of the opinion he will get out of his line and have the scattered shorts to get in the best way they can. The Armour interest on the long side has been cut materially, and shorts' position is very dangerous. If Valentine fears any injunction he has a chance to get out of September and leave the legal fight to someone else. I understand McIntyre & M. are long about 600,000 September wheat now.

Liverpool wheat opened ¼d higher on firmness of American market, but later continued fine weather in England pressed off ⅛d. Corn opened higher, but owing to lack of support, market declined ⅛d during the morning.

Broomhall cables: Russian official report states that all cereals are fair to good except in some districts in the northwest and east. The official estimate of Roumanian crops has been issued and are, compared with last year: Wheat, 73,000,000 bu, and a year ago, 70,400,000; oats, 21,600,000 bu, and a year ago, 10,080,000; barley, 24,000,000, and a year ago, 23,520,000.

Cash business in corn Friday at Chicago was 50,000 bu No. 2, 50,000 bu No. 3 yellow and 25,000 bu No. 3. Duluth reported 300,000 bu wheat sold for export and shipment. Seaboard sold 500,000 bu wheat, 24,000 bu corn and 60,000 oats.

A private cable from Liverpool says, "Market depressed by large offerings of Russian wheat of fine quality.' There are two eastern European countries that raised large wheat crops of fine quality and are now selling them freely—Russia and Roumania.

To Petri: Rosario cables of good general rains in Argentine and prospects are for large wheat crop.

A. K. Brown of Chicago, superintendent of the National Telegraph News Co., was a visitor on 'Change.

The committee of arbitration for the Merchants' Exchange has been hearing evidence on a case brought by W. B. Harrison & Co. against Luermann Bros. on a July oat deal. In this case Harrison & Co. bought from Luermann Bros. the oats to arrive, and a direct settlement was made at 50c on the last day of the month, but the sellers refused to pay on that basis; hence the trial by arbitration. The committee decided in favor of Hamilton & Co. in full, awarding them $750, and costs of the suit to be paid by the defendants.

FLOUR AND FEED.

FLOUR—Sellers are asking higher prices, but they find some difficulty in realising them. Considerable flour has been placed for export in the past day or so, but most millers say only by the closest margin in price. Demands from domestic buyers have improved.

Soft winter flour—patents, $3.25@3.35; straights, $3.10@3.20; extra fancy, $2.95@3.05; clears, $2.80@2.90; low grades, $2.30@2.60; hard winter flours—patents, $3.10@3.15; straights, $2.90@3; clear, $2.45@2.65. Spring wheat, patent, $3.40@3.60, bulk. Foregoing prices for lots from first hands, track or at depot this side. Orders higher.

RYE FLOUR—In a jobbing way at $2.60@2.70 in jute sacks and $2.80@2.90 in wood for new. Mixed and inferior less.

CORNMEAL, ETC.—F. o. b.: City meal at $2.90; grits, hominy and pearl meal at $3.20.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Eastern jobs at $7 per bbl.

HAY.

Received 510 tons local and 175 tons through; shipped 370 tons. Market firm for the top grades of timothy, receipts of which small and demand good, but too much of the lower grades on hand, and they rule dull. Offerings smaller of prairie and market firm.

Quote timothy on east side: Choice, $11@11.50; No. 1, $10@10.50; No. 2, $8@9; lower grades at $6@7.50. Clover—Choice, $12; other grades, $7@10. Prairie, on west side—Choice, $9.50; No. 1, $8.50@9; No. 2, $7.50.

STRAW—Wheat on track, $4.50.

MILLFEED—Demand continues good and offerings small, holding the market firm. Bran is salable east side basis at 68c in large and 65c in small sks; mixed feed in 100s at 70c and ships at 75@77c. At mill bran sells at 67@68c and ships at 95c@$1.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—St. Louis may have boodlers in her city government, whose notoriety extends far, but she must take a back seat when it comes to financiers in her police force. All the bouquets belong to New York.

When Police Captain Daniel C. Moynihan was on trial before Police Commissioner Partridge at police headquarters a few days ago, upon charges that he had a policeman do carpenter work in one of the captain's private houses, the accused testified that he was the owner of so much real estate, both in this city and in New Jersey, that he could not count it all.

It was stated unofficially that the captain, who had been the father of fourteen children, was worth anywhere between $700,000 and $900,000, yet his salary for the 30 years he had been a policeman was only about $30,000 in the aggregate.

Capt. Moynihan was found guilty and dismissed from the force.

There are many police officials in this city, today, both on active duty and on the retired list, who have accumulated great wealth during the time they have been members of the uniformed force.

Former Chief of Police Thomas Byrnes has a million and a half.

"Big Bill" Devery, the former chief of police, has an even million.

There are many inspectors and captains and retired wardmen who have half a million and more, and the list of those members of the police department who have $50,000 or more is placed at 48.

It is estimated that a police official who is 24 years on the force, has received altogether from the city nearly $48,000 in salary during that period.

The wealthy captains, inspectors, chiefs and wardmen have made their money in different ways. Most of them are real estate speculators. Many have gambled in Wall street, while others have played the races quite extensively.

There is no doubt that policemen have a better opportunity of making money than any other class of men in this city.

A wealthy Wall street broker has trouble in his family. He goes to the captain of his precinct or the chief of police. Stolen articles are recovered. Scandals are hushed up. In return for such services the Wall street man gives the captain or the chief a good tip, and the police official makes a good investment.

Former Chief Byrnes made a good portion of his money by speculating in Wall street. The late Jay Gould was one of Chief Byrnes' greatest admirers.

WOMAN IN BUGGY CAPTURES NEGRESS

Miss Vinda Delaplaine, who conducts a dressmaking establishment at 18 South Ninth street, captured a negro woman, charged with the larceny of four valuable rings, after a chase of seven blocks Thursday afternoon.

The suspect was searched at the Fourth district police station and two of the rings were recovered. The officers recognized the thief as an old offender and she was transferred to the Four Courts Friday to await the action of the grand jury.

The colored woman entered Miss Delaplaine's dressmaking establishment Thursday afternoon and asked to be shown some skirts. She acted suspiciously and until two other women entered the store her every movement was closely watched. While Miss Delaplaine was waiting on the other customers, the negro woman is supposed to have picked up four rings from a dresser and left the place.

Ten minutes later the valuables were missed. Miss Delaplaine secured her father's horse and buggy and drove after the woman. She traced her seven blocks by a circuitous route and finally sighted the quarry at Eleventh and Washington avenue. Following her to Lucas avenue, Miss Delaplaine called to her aid two young men, who detained the negress until an officer arrived.

The two most valuable rings, diamonds, were not recovered. The woman captured stated that the two other women who came into the store had taken the rings and given her two of them to secure her silence.

This, Miss Delaplaine says, was impossible, as the other woman never went near the dresser. The rings still unrecovered are valued at $75 each.

TROLLEY RAN AWAY DOWN STEEP HILL

PASSENGERS ON CHOUTEAU AVENUE CAR FRIGHTENED.

BRAKE FAILED TO WORK

Many Jumped From the Back Platform When the Speed Was Slackened.

Car 177, Fourth street line, coming down the hill on Chouteau avenue, at 7:45 a. m. with every inch of standing room taken, ran away from the motorman. At Ninth street it was going fast with the front break refusing to work.

The front platform was crowded. The motorman shouted "Put on the rear brake." Persons standing in front of the car thought he was shouting to wagons that scurried from the track. The motorman shouted again. More wagons had narrow escapes and a Seventh street car loomed up and was almost grazed. Then the door opened and a young man shouted, "Put on the back brake. The car is running away. Take off the trolley. It will jump the curve."

Those standing pressed to the rear of the car. Women arose and pushed back. One let down a window preparatory to leaping. A young man grabbed her and pulled her back. By this time the speed of the car began to slacken. Men and women tumbled off the back platform in all stages of disorder. Then the car stopped. Everybody got off and asked what was the matter. Women demanded transfers to Broadway. The conductor hooked up with a car behind and reassured the women passengers and they nearly all got back on.

A train was passing on the Poplar street tracks. As the car swung into Fourth street the motorman pulled the bell for a signal to the motorman behind to stop. He did not stop immediately, seeing the train some distance ahead. The motorman in front shouted again. Then there was more excitement. This time the car stopped and while the train was passing the motorman from the car behind fixed the brake and the runaway car was placed in leash. But several passengers had by this time gone on foot to their destinations.

GLASS WORKS FOR BELLEVILLE

J. W. Port Co. to Remove From Muncie, Ind.

It was announced Saturday that negotiations for the removal of the J. W. Port glassworks of Muncie, Ind., to Belleville, had been carried to a successful issue. Contracts have been signed for the removal of the plant.

The plant is to be located on the Lebanon road, near the Muren mine. The ground for it was secured on a subscription plan. Each subscriber to a fund for the purchase of the land was given a lot adjoining the factory site. The plant will cost $40,000 and 100 men will be employed. The payroll from the start will not be less than $6000 a month. The firm manufactures fruit jars and bottle ware. Its removal from Indiana has been made necessary by the signs of failure of the natural gas supply.

The acquisition of the plant is due to the efforts of the Commercial Club, and particularly to the work of President George W. Detharding and R. W. Ropiequet, chairman of the committee on promotion of trade.

PONTIAC CLUB GREW FAST.

New Location at 720 Olive Street for Business Men's Organization.

The Pontiac Club, the business men's organization, which was formed a few days ago, has grown to such an extent that the limit of membership has been raised from 500 to 1000. The club is to be something after the order of the lunch clubs in downtown New York. It will have an excellent cuisine at reasonable rates and furnish a place where busy men may have a short respite during midday.

W. C. Hendricks, the club's secretary, said this morning: "We found that we had so many applications that we thought it best to raise the membership limit. The location first selected for the club would have proved entirely inadequate and we have secured a lease on the second, third and fourth floors of the Virginia building, at 720 and 722 Olive street. It is a far better and more central location."

If a child is born especially beautiful, is not its every feature to be considered the smile of love and denote too the care and attention the mother had given her throughout the entire period of gestation and childbirth. On the condition of the mother during pregnancy depends the nature, temperament, beauty and grace of the child. Among manifold aids to childbirth MOTHER'S FRIEND has grown to popularity and gained a prestige among rich women as well as poor; it is found and welcomed in the mansion as well as cabin. By lessening the mother's agony of mind and diminishing pain a beautiful influence is wrought upon the child, and instead of peevish, ill-tempered and sickly forms you have laughing humanity that remains a blessing ever after to you and its country.

20 INDICTMENTS RETURNED

The September St. Clair County grand jury returned 20 indictments into the Circuit Court at Belleville Friday afternoon. A number were withheld from publication because the persons under indictment have not been arrested. Among these are said to be a couple which will cause something of a sensation, but no inkling has been obtained as to who they affect.

Among the true bills were the following: William Brandt, robbery; Patrick Bunyon, assault; Edward Fallon, robbery; Edward Ahring, carrying concealed weapons; John West, burglary and larceny; John Loftus, burglary and larceny; Harry Taylor, burglary and larceny; Harvey B. Weber, forgery; Grant Miles, assault to murder; John ePnix, burglar and larceny; Martin Davis, burglary and larceny, three charges.

The indictment for carrying concealed weapons is unusual. Such cases are usually settled in justice courts. Ahring lives at O'Fallon.

The present grandjury has a good deal of work ahead of it. Altogether, 50 cases are to be examined into. Among them are nine murder cases.
